Abstract

A checklist of the species of leaf beetles (Coleoptera: Chrysomelidae) of El Salvador is presented based on data from literature and a digitization project of the Bechyné collection of the Royal Belgian Institute of Natural Sciences (RBINS). The RBINS collections contain a total of 2797 individual chrysomelid specimens from El Salvador, sorted into 89 species and 132 genera. In total, the current checklist contains 420 species, of which 33 are new records for El Salvador from the Bechyné collection. In these collections, there are also ten nomina nuda named by Bechyné, which need further study. The leafbeetle diversity in El Salvador, partly due to the country's unstable political history, remains poorly studied, and many (new) species await discovery. This checklist provides a baseline for further study in El Salvador and nearby region.

Neotropical Owls Paula L. Enriquez,2017-07-24 This book presents a comprehensive biological and ecological information about owls in the neotropic area In addition the book covers topics such as threats and conservation strategies for these nocturnal birds of prey from 18 Neotropical countries Owls are a good example of diversification processes and have developed evolutionary characteristics themselves These species are found almost everywhere in the world but most of them are distributed in tropical areas and about a third of them live in the Neotropics This biogeographic region has a high biodiversity and even share lineages of species from other continents because at some point all were part of Pangea Although we still have much to know and understand about this diverse scarcely studied and threatened group this work aims to be a precedent for future and further research on the subject

The Zoological Record ,2003-12 Biodiversity, Biosystematics, and Ecology of Canadian Coleoptera II Christopher G. Majka,J.

Klimaszewski, 2009-09-28 This volume includes thirteen research articles focused primarily on Canadian Coleoptera. Several taxonomic and biodiversity studies examine groups within the Staphylinidae, Cerambycidae, Gyrinidae, and Halipilidae, describing new species, presenting keys to identification, mapping distributions, and reporting new provincial and national records. Other studies direct their attention to saproxylic beetles as indicators of forest disturbance and to the beetle fauna of Rhode Island and the larger zoogeographic utility of distributional checklists. An introductory essay discusses a variety of challenges to biodiversity and biosystematics research worldwide. The contents of the present volume represent stepping stones of biodiversity research, a discipline vital to the future of life on the planet. The book is addressed to coleopterists, taxonomists, ecologists, biogeographers, and conservationists. Elasmobranch Biodiversity, Conservation and Management Sarah L. Fowler, Tim M. Reed, Frances Dipper, 2002 The Darwin Elasmobranch Biodiversity Conservation and Management project in Sabah held a three-day international seminar that included a one-day workshop in order to highlight freshwater and coastal elasmobranch conservation issues in the region and worldwide to disseminate the results of the project to other Malaysian states and countries and to raise awareness of the importance of considering aspects of elasmobranch biodiversity in the context of nature conservation, commercial fisheries management, and for subsistence fishing communities. These proceedings contain numerous peer-reviewed papers originally presented at the seminar which cover a wide range of topics with particular reference to species from freshwater and estuarine habitats. The workshop served to develop recommendations concerning the future prospects of elasmobranch fisheries biodiversity conservation and management. This paper records those conclusions which highlight the importance of elasmobranchs as top marine predators and keystone species, noting that permanent damage to shark and ray populations is likely to have serious and unexpected negative consequences for commercial and subsistence yields of other important fish stocks. Marine Flora and Fauna of the Northeastern United States David Leo Pawson, 1977 NOAA Technical Report NMFS CIRC., 1977 A Reference Guide for English Studies Michael J.
