Murray,1994 Theory Groups in the Study of Language in North America provides a detailed social history of traditions and revolutionary challenges to traditions within North American linguistics especially within 20th century anthropological linguistics After showing substantial differences between Bloomfield s and neo Bloomfieldian theorizing Murray shows that early transformational generative work on syntax grew out of neo Bloomfieldian structuralism and was promoted by neo Bloomfieldian gatekeepers in particular longtime Language editor Bernard Bloch The central case studies of the book contrast the increasingly revolutionary rhetoric of transformational generative grammarians with rhetorics of continuity emitted by two linguistic anthropology groupings that began simultaneously with TGG in the late 1950s the ethnography of communication and ethnoscience New Perspectives on Romance Linguistics: Morphology, syntax, semantics and pragmatics Chiyo Nishida,Jean-Pierre Montreuil,2006-01-01 This is the first of two volumes emanating from the Linguistic Symposium on Romance Languages held at the University of Texas at Austin in February 2005 It features the keynote address delivered by Denis Bouchard on exaptation and linguistic explanation as well as seventeen contributions by emerging and internationally recognized scholars of Spanish French Italian as well as Rumanian While the emphasis bears on formal analyses the coverage is remarkably broad as topics range from morphology syntax semantics pragmatics and language acquisition Each article seeks to represent a new perspective on these topics and a variety of frameworks and concepts are exploited distributive morphology entailment theory grammaticalization information structure left periphery polarity lattice spatial individuation thematic hierarchy etc This volume will challenge anyone interested in current issues in theoretical Romance Linguistics Lexical Specification and Insertion Peter Coopmans,Martin Everaert,Jane Barbara Grimshaw,2000 The papers in this volume address the general question what type of lexical specifications we need in a generative grammar and by what principles this information is projected onto syntactic configurations or to put it differently how lexical insertion is executed Many of the contributions focus on what the syntactic consequences are of choices that are made with respect to the lexical specifications of heads The data in the volume are drawn from diverse languages among which Brazilian Portuguese Bulgarian Dutch English French German Icelandic Italian Mohawk Norwegian Polish Russian Canadian-American Slavic Studies ,1990 A quarterly journal devoted to Russia and East Europe The Laws of Indo-European N. Regional Meeting,1989 Slavic Review ,1990 Tense and Aspect in Indo-European Languages John Hewson,1997-01-01 This monograph presents a general picture of the evolution of IE verbal systems within a coherent cognitive framework The work encompasses all the language families of the IE phylum from prehistory to present day languages Inspired by the ideas of Roman Jakobson and Gustave Guillaume the authors relate tense and aspect to underlying cognitive processes and show that verbal systems have a staged development of time representations chronogenesis They view linguistic change as systemic and trace the evolution of the earliest tense systems by a aspectual split and b aspectual merger from the original aspectual contrasts of PIE the evidence for such systemic change showing clearly in the paradigmatic morphology of the daughter languages The nineteen chapters cover first the ancient documentation then those families whose historical data are from a more recent date The last chapters deal with the systemic evolution of languages that are descended from ancient forbears such as Sanskrit Greek and Latin and are completed by a chapter on the practical and theoretical conclusions of the work Word ,1998 Coding the Hypothetical Jane F. Hacking,1998 Conditionals encode speculation They convey how events could have been different in the past or present or might be different in the future if particular conditions had been or will be met While all languages afford the means to speculate or hypothesize about possible events the ways in which they do so vary This work explores some of this variation through an analysis of the stucture and semantics of complex conditional sentences in Russian and Macedonian It addresses typological questions about the general properties of natural language conditionals and examines the role of the grammatical categories tense aspect mood and status in the coding of conditional meaning The book also discusses the relationship between the use of these categories and the shape of a language s conditional system For example the use of tense in counterfactual contexts in Macedonian correlates with the grammaticalization of more shades of conditional meaning than are grammaticalized in Russian which does not employ tense forms in this way The study draws on data from a rich variety of sources and thus includes kinds of conditionals overlooked in many other studies The book addresses issues of concern to Slavists and raises questions for those interested in conditionals and the coding of hypothetical meaning Phrasal Constructions and Resultativeness in English Marina Gorlach,2004 Eat up the apple or Eat the apple up Is there any difference in the messages each of these alternative forms sends If there isn t why bother to keep both On the other hand is there any semantic similarity between eat the apple up and break the glass to pieces This study takes a fresh look at a still controversial issue of phrasal verbs and their alternate word order applying sign oriented theory and methodology Unlike other analyses it asserts that there is a semantic distinction between the two word order variants phrasal verbs may appear in In order to test this distinction the author analyzes a large corpus of data and also uses
