Huddersfield Mills Vivien Teasdale, 2010-09-22 A survey of the early textile mills of the famed English town and work and life amid the Industrial Revolution with photos and illustrations In this fascinating survey Vivien Teasdale documents the mills of Huddersfield some now demolished others repurposed and a few still connected with the modern textile industry Teasdale also recalls the people whose livelihood depended on the mills the owners the workers and their families Their combined efforts over generations created the prosperity and growth that gave birth to the town we see today and this book gives a keen insight into their work and their lives All kinds of mills are featured here woolen worsted yarn spinners and shoddy The people who worked in them are brought vividly to life where they lived how much they earned what their working conditions were like Early union disputes are recalled giving a glimpse of the organized labor for which Huddersfield is so rightly famous Some of the names may live on mainly in the streets or buildings named after them others have long been forgotten despite their influence on the town in the early days But the era in Huddersfield s history that they represent and the lost community of individuals and families who lives revolved around them are well remembered here

Dissecting the Criminal Corpse Elizabeth T.

Hurren,2016-08-17 Those convicted of homicide were hanged on the public gallows before being dissected under the Murder Act in Georgian England Yet from 1752 whether criminals actually died on the hanging tree or in the dissection room remained a medical mystery in early modern society Dissecting the Criminal Corpse takes issue with the historical cliché of corpses dangling from the hangman's rope in crime studies Some convicted murderers did survive execution in early modern England Establishing medical death in the heart lungs brain was a physical enigma Criminals had large bull necks strong willpowers and hearty survival instincts Extreme hypothermia often disguised coma in a prisoner hanged in the winter cold The youngest and fittest were capable of reviving on the dissection table Many died under the lancet Capital legislation disguised a complex medical choreography that surgeons staged They broke the Hippocratic Oath by executing the Dangerous Dead across England from 1752 until 1832 This book is open access under a CC BY license Chartism

Malcolm Chase,2013-07-19 Chartism the mass movement for democratic rights dominated British domestic politics in the late 1830s and 1840s It mobilised over three million supporters at its height Few modern European social movements certainly in Britain have captured the attention of posterity to quite the extent it has done Encompassing moments of great drama it is one of the very rare points in British history where it is legitimate to speculate how close the country came to revolution It is also pivotal to debates around continuity and change in Victorian Britain gender language and identity Chartism A New History is the only book to offer in depth coverage of the entire chronological spread 1838-58 of this pivotal movement and to consider its rich and varied history in full Based throughout on original research including newly discovered material this is a vivid and compelling narrative of a movement which mobilised three million people at its height The author deftly intertwines analysis and narrative interspersing his chapters with short Chartist Lives relating the intimate and personal to the realm of the social and political This book will become essential reading for anyone with an interest in early Victorian Britain specialists students and general readers alike Cinemas and Cinema-Going in the United Kingdom: Decades of Decline, 1945-65 Sam Manning,2020-03-31

Cinema going was the most popular commercial leisure activity in the first half of the twentieth century peaking in 1946 with 1.6 billion recorded admissions Though going to the pictures remained a popular pastime the transition to peacetime altered citizens' leisure habits During the 1950s increased affluence the growth of television ownership and the diversification of leisure led to rapid declines in attendance Cinema attendances fell in all regions but the speed, nature and extent of decline varied widely across the United Kingdom By linking national developments to detailed case studies of Belfast and Sheffield this book adds nuance to our understanding of regional variations in film exhibition audience habits and cinema going experiences during a period of profound social and cultural change Drawing on a wide range of quantitative and qualitative sources Cinema and Cinema Going conveys the diverse nature of this important industry and the significance of place as a determinant of film attendance in post-war Britain
