Psychotherapy for the Advanced Practice Psychiatric Nurse, Second Edition Kathleen Wheeler, 2013-12-11 Print CourseSmart Endocrine Function and Aging H. James Armbrrecht, Rodney M. Coe, Nirandon Wongsurawat, 2013-12-21 One of the hallmarks of aging is the decreased capacity to adapt to changes in the environment In a constant controlled environment it is often difficult to distinguish the functioning of the young organism from that of the old However when stresses are applied temperature stresses dietary stresses infection emotional stresses the differences are more apparent Frequently the response of the old is delayed and may never reach the same magnitude as the young These responses in most cases are mediated by the neuroendocrine system which communicates via hormones neurotransmitters and related substances Thus it is important to understand the age related changes that take place in the secretion and action of these substances and how these changes relate to the well being of the whole organism Indeed the neuroendocrine theory of aging proposes that almost all of the characteristics of aging can be accounted for by dysfunction of the neuroendocrine system A book on endocrine function and aging is particularly relevant at this time With the advent of the techniques of molecular biology there has been an explosion of knowledge concerning hormone secretion and action Hormones pro hormones hormone receptors and second messenger mediators rapidly are being cloned and sequenced Such knowledge gives us important insights into the molecular workings of these substances as well as into the genetic basis of endocrine dysfunction These new tools are now being applied to the problem of age related changes in endocrine function
