and offers in depth profiles of their subsequent career experiences Two sets of interviews with the most successful Black executives in Chicago s major corporations are used to demonstrate how the creation of the Black business elite is connected to federal government pressures and black social unrest that characterized the civil Rights movement in the sixties Black Corporate Executives presents first hand the dilemmas and contradictions that face this first wave of Black managers and reveals a subtle new employment discrimination Corporations hired these executives in response to race conscious political pressures and shifted them into racialized positions directing affirmative action programs or serving special markets of minority clients customers or urban affairs Many executives became as one man said the head Black in charge of Black people These positions gave upper middle class lifestyles to those who held them but also siphoned these executives out of mainstream paths to corporate power typically leading through planning and production areas As the political climate has become more conservative and the economy undergoes restructuring these Black executives believe that the importance of recruiting Blacks has waned and that the jobs Blacks hold are vulnerable Collins Lowry s analysis challenges arguments that justify dismantling affirmative action She argues that it is a myth to believe that Black occupational attainments are evidence that race no longer matters in the middle class employment arena On the contrary Blacks progress and well being are tied to politics and employment practices that are sensitive to race Author note Sharon M Collins teaches Sociology at the University of Illinois in Chicago
