Black List Section H:

Black List, Section H. Francis Stuart, 1971 Black List Section H is Francis Stuart's twentieth novel, the con summation of a lifetime devoted to writing and perhaps the keystone through which all of his other works must be viewed. Almost totally autobiographical, described by the novelist himself as an imaginative fiction in which only real people appear and under their actual names where possible, the novel encompasses the period from 1919 when H the hero comes to Dublin and meets Maud Gonne and marries her adopted daughter Iseult through the period of the Second World War when in 1939 burdened by marital and financial difficulties he accepts a position as lecturer at Berlin University. Stuart's depiction of wartime Berlin, the Allied bombings and the endless shuffling between refugee and prison camps after the war is one of the few accounts of these experiences in English. More than a mere record of one man's life, the book is an experience deeply lived and set down in fine prose with an intensity that is contagious. Black List, Section H Francis Stuart, 1982-01-01 Francis Stuart

Jerry H. Natterstad, 1974 Each volume of the Irish Writers series is devoted to one Irish writer of the 19th or 20th century giving a full account of their literary careers and major works and considering the relationship of their Irish backgrounds to their writings as a whole. Irish Writing in the Twentieth Century David Pierce, 2000 Arranged chronologically by decade from the 1890s to the 1990s each decade is divided into two different types of writing: critical documentary and imaginative writing and is accompanied by a headnote which situates it thematically and chronologically. The Reader is also structured for thematic study by listing all the pieces included under a series of topic headings. The wide range of material encompasses writings of well known figures in the Irish canon and neglected writers alike. This will appeal to the general reader but also makes Irish Writing in the Twentieth Century ideal as a core text providing a unique focus for detailed study in a single volume. BOOK JACKET

'As I was Among the Captives' Joseph Campbell, 2001 Joseph Campbell 1879-1944 was a talented poet reared in Catholic Belfast who became a pioneer of Irish Studies in the United States. His reputation as an Irish Irelander was gained in London but in 1921 he settled outside Dublin and soon became active in radical nationalism. In the revolutionary years he became a republican justice and local councillor in Co Wicklow. Having opposed the Anglo-Irish Treaty he was arrested in Bray, spending the entire Civil War interned in Mountjoy and Tintern on the Curragh. Campbell's voluminous diaries cannily concealed from his captors provide much more than a chronicle of events and experiences. Being the work of a skilled writer and acute observer they offer revealing cameos of his republican colleagues, vivid notes of personal conversations and imaginative reflections on the psychological effects of incarceration. Sympathetically edited by another distinguished poet and scholar, this selection from his diaries will fascinate all students of the Irish Civil War.

Irish Writers and Religion Robert Welch, 1992-01-01 Irish writing has been influenced by religion from the beginning; indeed it was the arrival of Christianity which brought Latin orthography which men of learning adopted. Pagan beliefs were assimilated into Christianity but not entirely so, a theme which is dealt with in the essay on writing in early Ireland. The relationship between the various Irish Churches and writers in the 18th and 19th centuries is examined as is the influence of folk religion in modern Irish literature There follow essays on ghosts Yeats Synge Joyce and Beckett and on the poets Macneice Kavanagh and Desmond Egan Contributors Lance St John Butler Peter Denman Desmond Egan Ruth Fleischmann A M Gibbs Barbara Hayley Eamonn Hughes Anne McCartney Seamus MacMathuna Joseph McMinn Nuala ni Dhomhnaill Mitsuko Ohno Daithi O Hogain Alan Peacock Patricia Rafroidi and Robert Welch Irish Literary Studies Series No 37

Ireland and the Problem of Information Damien Keane, 2015-06-10 Though the work of Irish writers has been paramount in conventional accounts of literary modernism Ireland itself only rarely occupies a meaningful position in accounts of modernism's historical trajectory With an itinerary moving not simply among Dublin Belfast and London but also Paris New York Addis Ababa Rome Berlin Geneva and the world's radio receivers Ireland and the Problem of Information examines the pivotal mediations through which social knowledge was produced in the mid twentieth century Organized as a series of cross fading case studies the book argues that an expanded sphere of Irish cultural production should be read as much for what it indicates about practices of intermedial circulation and their consequences as for what it reveals about Irish writing around the time of the Second World War In this way it positions the problem of information as first and foremost an international predicament but one with particular national implications for the Irish field Irish Writers on Writing Eavan Boland, 2007 Drawing on sources such as the land the Church the past changing politics and literary styles Irish writers ranging from W B Yeats James Joyce and Augusta Gregory to Roddy Doyle Kate O'Brien Colm Toibin John Banville and Seamus Heaney explore what it means to be a writer in Ireland Provided by publisher The Colors of Zion George Bornstein, 2011-06-01 A major reevaluation of relationships among Blacks Jews and Irish in the years between the Irish Famine and the end of World War II The Colors of Zion argues that the cooperative efforts and sympathies among these three groups each persecuted and subjugated in its own way was much greater than often acknowledged today For the Black Jewish and Irish writers poets musicians and politicians at the center of this transatlantic study a sense of shared wrongs inspired repeated outpourings of sympathy If what they have to say now surprises us it is because our current constructions of interracial and ethnic relations have overemphasized conflict and division As George Bornstein says in his Introduction he chooses to let the principals speak for themselves While acknowledging past conflicts and tensions Bornstein insists on recovering the lost connections through which these groups frequently defined their plights as well as their aspirations In doing so he examines a wide range of materials including immigration laws lynching hostile race theorists Nazis and Klansmen discriminatory university practices and Jewish publishing houses alongside popular plays like The Melting Pot and Abie's Irish Rose canonical novels like Ulysses and Daniel Deronda music from slave spirituals to jazz poetry and early films such as The Jazz Singer The models of brotherhood that extended beyond ethnocentrism a century ago the author argues might do so once again today if only we bear them in mind He also urges us to move beyond arbitrary and invidious Changing States Robert Welch Nfa,2005-09-23 In Changing States Robert Welch examines the work of the major authors of modern Irish literature in the context of the transformation from Gaelic to twentieth century post industrial culture The force of Irish writing uniting authors as various as Yeats Heaney Synge Beckett Joyce and Mairtin O Cadhain largely derives Welch argues from their need to respond to the challenges of this transformation Writing against a sense of loss their work is distinguished by certain key features an intense awareness of the power of language a provisionality in regard to character a preoccupation with change and an obsession with the past and its meaning Robert Welch draws attention to the crucial but often hidden aspects of modern Irish writing He examines its flexibility its scepticism its concern with form and ultimately the need for change and the fear of it He provides a unique in depth study of individual authors in the context of cultural and linguistic developments that will be an invaluable text for anyone interested in Irish life and literature or in language and translation Modern Irish Writers Alexander G. Gonzalez,1997-08-26 While the Irish Literary Revival began around 1885 and ended somewhere between 1925 and 1940 the Irish Renaissance has continued to the present day and shows no sign of abating The period has produced some of the most important and influential figures in Irish literature some of whom are counted among the world s greatest authors The Revival saw a reestablishment of Ireland s literary connections with its Celtic heritage and writers such as William Butler Yeats and Lady Gregory drew heavily on the myths and legends of the past James Joyce boldly reshaped the novel and wrote short fiction of enduring value Contemporary Irish writers continue to be leading figures and include such authors as Brian Frigl Seamus Heaney and Eavan Boland Included in this reference book are alphabetically arranged entries for more than 70 modern Irish writers including Samuel Beckett William Trevor Patrick Kavanagh Medbh McGuckian Sean O Casey J M Synge and Nuala Ni Dhomhnaill Entries are written by expert contributors and reflect a broad range of perspectives Each entry contains a brief biography that summarizes the author s career a discussion of major works and themes an overview of the author s critical reception and a bibliography of primary and secondary works An introductory essay reviews the large and growing body of scholarship on modern Irish literature while an extensive bibliography concludes the volume Internal Revenue Bulletin United States.
