Abstract

In modern society, the media play a significant role in promoting beauty trends and the perfect woman. Women's magazines are one of the many structures involved in the production of representations of women. The goal of this research was to examine the ways in which women are portrayed in the media, i.e. on the covers of Cosmopolitan magazine. The method used in this research is content analysis, which was carried out in 2022. Analysis included period from 2010 to 2020. The covers were photographed and afterwards analyzed. Odd numbers of magazines (i.e. their covers) were chosen for the sample. Also, among such covers only those showing one woman were chosen. The total number of analyzed covers is 64. The analysis process included the analysis of visual and textual elements. The analysis shows that the most represented topic on the covers is sex, followed by fashion and love. The covers of the magazine mostly show young white women with make-up, brown hair of medium length and wavy loose hair. More than half of the women on the covers have a smiling face. Also, most women bodies are presented from the knees/thighs up and most of them are women with slim bodies. By profession, the most common are actresses and singers, then models, mostly of foreign origin. As for the analyzed text by the image, in most cases it is advice, expression of personal experiences or recommendations of the people who are shown on the covers, written in the first or third person singular, which tries to influence the reader's behavior. Finally, the women on the covers are flawless, perfect women, therefore almost unreal. Although the aim of the magazine is to advise and inform women about various everyday topics, it certainly has a hidden message, which is to promote the perfect ideal of beauty that influences young women all over the world.

Schools Betrayed Kathryn M. Neckerman,2008-09-15 The problems commonly associated with inner city schools were not nearly as pervasive a century ago when black children in most northern cities attended school alongside white children In Schools Betrayed her innovative history of race and urban education Kathryn M Neckerman tells the story of how and why these schools came to serve black children so much worse than their white counterparts Focusing on Chicago public schools between 1900 and 1960 Neckerman compares the circumstances of blacks and white immigrants groups that had similarly little wealth and status yet came to gain vastly different benefits from their education Their divergent educational outcomes she contends stemmed from Chicago officials decision to deal with rising African American migration by segregating schools and denying black students equal resources And it deepened she shows because of techniques for managing academic failure that only reinforced inequality Ultimately these tactics eroded the legitimacy of the schools in Chicago s black community leaving educators unable to help their most disadvantaged students Schools Betrayed will be required reading for anyone who cares about urban education      Social Work: The Basics Mark Doel,2022-10-25 This revised second edition of Social Work The Basics is an insightful introduction to the often misrepresented world of social work This accessible book presents a broad view of contemporary social work exploring its roots and its possible future It dispels myths surrounding social work addresses media debates and offers a balanced account of what social workers do Arguing for a social work that is partisan in support of social justice questions covered include How did social work arise How and why do people come into contact with social workers What are the true aims of social work to help or to control What is the relationship between social work and social policy How and why do people become social workers What s it like to be a social worker Can social work cross borders Drawing examples from the full range of social work practice this book is valuable reading for all individuals interested in the field of social work It will provide a helpful introduction for students considering a career in social work those beginning social work courses and other professionals whose work brings them into contact with social workers

Sociology David M. Newman,Jodi O'Brien,2008-01-07 This carefully edited companion anthology provides provocative eye opening examples of the practice of sociology in a well edited well designed and affordable format It includes short articles chapters and excerpts that examine common everyday experiences important social issues or distinct historical events that illustrate the relationship between the individual and society The new edition will provide more detail regarding the theory and or history related to each issue presented The revision will also include more coverage of global issues and world religions      Africentric Social Work Delores V. Mullings,2021-05-31T00:00:00Z This edited collection focuses on Africentric social work practice providing invaluable assistance to undergraduate students in developing foundational skills and knowledge to further their understanding of how to initiate and maintain best practices with African Canadians In social work education and field practice students will benefit from the depth and breadth of this book s discussions of social health and educational concerns related to Black people across Canada The book s contributors present a broad spectrum of personal and professional experiences as African Canadian social work practitioners students and educators They address issues that African Canadians confront daily which social work educators and potential practitioners need to understand to provide racially and culturally relevant services The book presents students with an invaluable opportunity to develop their practical skills through case studies and critical thinking exercises with recommendations for how to ethically and culturally engage in African centred service provision Social Work, White Supremacy, and Racial Justice Laura S.
