Blackburn A Pictorial History:

Blackburn Geoffrey Timmins,1993-01-01 British Sport: Local histories Richard William Cox,2003 Volume three of a bibliography documenting all that has been written in the English language on the history of sport and physical education in Britain It lists all secondary source material including reference works in a classified order to meet the needs of the sports historian British Sport - A Bibliography to 2000 Richard Cox,2014-02-04 Volume two of a bibliography documenting all that has been written in the English language on the history of sport and physical education in Britain It lists all secondary source material including reference works in a classified order to meet the needs of the sports historian Urban Politics and Space in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries Barry M. Doyle,2009-10-02 This book addresses the increasing regionalisation of urban governance and politics in an era of industrialisation suburbanisation and welfare extension It provides an important reassessment of the role structure and activities of urban elites highlighting their vitality and their interdependence and demonstrating the increasing regionalisation of municipal politics as towns sought to promote themselves extend services and even expand physically onto a regional level Moreover it explores the discourses surrounding space in which gender class morality and community all feature prominently How urban space and its uses were defined and redefined became key political weapons across the regions of England in the nineteenth century and these chapters show how a range of sources maps poems songs paintings illustrated journalism social investigations historical texts were employed by contemporaries to shape the urban and its image often by placing it in a regional context or contributing to the creation of a regional image and identity This collection illustrates the continuing vitality of the study of urban politics and governance and presents a rare attempt to place English urban history in a regional context Barry Doyle has assembled an impressive team of experts on urban politics to examine not just party politics but the wider machinery of government the boards agencies and committees that shaped British towns and cities after 1830 Space and place were contested and negotiated and a distinctive sense of local identity emerged In so doing the collection challenges some of the generalisations about the governance of urban Britain and reminds us that despite a shrinking globe the local and regional are crucial to our everyday lives The book should be read by all interested in and especially those working for local government Professor Richard Rodger University of Edinburgh In Urban Politics and Urban Space in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries Regional Perspectives Barry Doyle brings together nine original essays by both established and younger authors to explore three inter related themes in urban history politics space and region from the early to mid nineteenth century to the mid twentieth century The book is conveniently divided into three sections dealing with structures of politics politics institutions and urban management and governance discourses and space Each of the contributions to this volume promises to both enrich our knowledge of specific moments in British politico urban development through the study of discrete developments in time and space and to open up and extend the debate on the British variant of urban modernity Each examines the ways in which local power space and regional relations developed and changed between the early nineteenth and mid twentieth century Localities their politics and communal identities are never really far from a national context indeed they largely shaped it as these essays make clear Doyle is to be commended for his endeavour not just as the editor but in particular for his introduction to the volume In a richly referenced essay that comes in at just over seven and half thousand words he casts a panoramic view over the field in the last few decades making connections where few contemporary urban historians care to tread Doyle gives us a forceful challenge to what he sees as a particularly English malaise in this period namely that of failing to recognise the potential of regional and local government to shape and manage the major reallocation of space and power a vital sphere of public life that is contemporary to our own times It is a masterly and well informed piece of writing that will set the standard for some years to come Professor Anthony McElligott University of Limerick Made in Lancashire

Elizabeth Blackburn and the Story of Telomeres Catherine Brady, 2009-02-13 The story of molecular biologist Elizabeth Blackburn and her groundbreaking research on telomeres and what it reveals about the resourceful opportunism that characterizes the best scientific thinking Molecular biologist Elizabeth Blackburn one of Time magazine's 100 Most Influential People in the World in 2007 made headlines in 2004 when she was dismissed from the President's Council on Bioethics after objecting to the council's call for a moratorium on stem cell research and protesting the suppression of relevant scientific evidence in its final report But it is Blackburn's groundbreaking work on telomeric DNA which launched the field of telomere research that will have the more profound and long lasting effect on science and society In this compelling biography Catherine Brady tells the story of Elizabeth Blackburn's life and work and the emergence of a new field of scientific research on the specialized ends of chromosomes and the enzyme telomerase that extends them In the early stages of telomere research telomerase heralded as a potential cure for cancer and diseases related to aging attracted the voracious interest of biotech companies The surrounding hype succeeded in confusing the role of telomerase in extending the life of a cell with a mechanism that might extend the lifespan of an entire organism In Brady's hands Blackburn's story reveals much about the tension between pure and applied science the politicking that makes research science such a competitive field and the resourceful opportunism that characterizes the best scientific thinking Brady describes the science accessibly and compellingly She explores Blackburn's struggle to break down barriers in an elite male dominated profession her role as a mentor to other women scientists many of whom have made their mark in telomere research and the collaborative nature of scientific work This book gives us a vivid portrait of an exceptional woman and a new understanding of the combination of curiosity imaginative speculation and aesthetic delight that powers scientific discovery volume this anniversary edition will offer a new generation of readers entrance to the life and mind of one of the twentieth century s greatest artists International Sport: A Bibliography, 1995-1999 Richard William Cox,2004-04-22 There has been an explosion in the quantity of sports history literature published in recent years making it increasingly difficult to keep abreast of developments The annual number of publications has increased from around 250 to 1 000 a year over the last decade This is due in part to the fact that during the late 1980s and 90s many clubs leagues and governing bodies of sport have celebrated their centenaries and produced histories to mark this occasion and commemorate their achievements It is also the result of the growing popularity and realisation of the importance of sport history research within academe This international bibliography of books articles conference proceedings and essays in the English language is a one stop for the sports historian to know what is new *Birmingham free libraries.
