Company Analysis Per V. Jenster, David Hussey, 2001-05-25 It is vital for organisations to use company analysis to gain understanding of their limiting and enabling factors and strategic capabilities Profits can then be maximised by selecting the most effective strategies and through successful implementation of mergers acquisitions and divestment opportunities In this book Jenster and Hussey move away from the opinion based SWOT analysis commonly used to provide a more objective step by step approach to objectively analysing an organisation This important task is clearly explained with information helpfully displayed in diagrams and checklists of critical questions provided In addition to the key functional areas of management corporate wide approaches such as core competencies critical success factors industry analysis and the value chain are also examined The book is illuminated with examples from the authors own experiences resulting in a practical and effective approach which will provide a foundation for corporate strategy and add a strategic dimension to a due diligence study and so prove invaluable to MBA students and lecturers in strategic management Every manager will be asked to participate in assessing strengths and weaknesses at some time in their career and this book enables a considerable improvement to be made to many commonly used methods and for those responsible for the development of strategies it offers even more

Strategies and Structure of the Luxury Clothing and Accessories Sector Mirela Orlovic, 2003-07-04. Inhaltsangabe: Introduction. The luxury goods industry is a fascinating field. As Jean Louis Dumas, Hermès chairman and CEO of Hermès explains, Le luxe c'est créer un rêve qui perdure. In addition to the dream dimension that defies scientific analysis, the luxury goods companies have kept highly secretive. Alain D. Perrin, President and CEO at Cartier International, elucidates: One of our strengths is our ability to maintain a certain mystery about the economic entity which is the company. We bring magic and dreams to consumers who don't want to see their favourite brands discussed in the media and lacking any sense of the romantic. Systematic research confines itself mainly to specialised marketing literature, especially that of French scholars. But recent developments have raised various questions and call for more systematic research in diverse fields. Over the past two decades, luxury companies, in particular in the clothing sector, have had to face an increasingly turbulent environment. On the supply side, French dominance, especially in the haute couture sector, has been challenged as competition has increased, mainly from Italian and American fashion houses. Furthermore, the traditionally fragmented luxury industry has become more concentrated; a visible sign for the consolidation was the merger of Louis Vuitton and Moët Hennessy in 1987. Finally, as a result of diversification strategies, most fashion houses have extended to more accessible luxury products and, as a result, realize now a substantial part of sales in both clothing and accessories. But also the demand side has been substantially changing. In 1899, the American economist Thorstein Veblen published the first proper study of consumerism in which he identified and analysed the traditional luxury customer group which he called the leisure class. It was not until the 1980s that the leisure class was joined by newly rich and occasional customers from the middle class. On the one hand, the luxury industry has expanded to more accessible products and to new geographical markets, and on the other hand, a growth in wealth of the Western industrialized nations has increased purchase of luxury goods. These mostly fundamental changes have challenged and will furthermore challenge the fashion houses and the ability to establish a competitive advantage. The objective of this thesis is gaining a thorough understanding of the luxury clothing and accessories
