Development of executive function during childhood Yusuke Moriguchi, Philip D Zelazo, Nicolas Chevalier, 2016-04-01 Executive function refers to the goal oriented regulation of one's own thoughts actions and emotions Its importance is attested by its contribution to the development of other cognitive skills e.g. theory of mind social abilities e.g. peer interactions and academic achievement e.g. mathematics and by the consequences of deficits in executive function which are observed in wide range of developmental disorders such as attention deficit hyperactivity disorder and autism Over the last decade there have been growing interest in the development of executive function and an expanding body of research has shown that executive function develops rapidly during the preschool years with adult level performance being achieved during adolescence or later This recent work together with experimental research showing the effects of interventions targeting executive function has yielded important insights into the neurocognitive processes underlying executive function Given the complexity of the construct of executive function however and the multiplicity of underlying processes there are often inconsistencies in the way that executive function is defined and studied This inconsistency has hampered communication among researchers from various fields This Research Topic is intended to bridge this gap and provide an opportunity for researchers from different perspectives to discuss recent advances in understanding childhood executive function Researchers using various methods including behavioral experiments neuroimaging eye tracking computer simulation observational methods and questionnaires are encouraged to contribute original empirical research In addition to original empirical articles theoretical reviews and opinions perspective articles on promising future directions are welcome We hope that researchers from different areas such as developmental psychology educational psychology experimental psychology neuropsychology neuroscience psychiatry computational science etc will be represented in the Research Topic

Prairie Farmer ,1847 Life Skills at Home Kim Barker,1998-12 Theories of Perception in Medieval and Early Modern Philosophy Simo Knuuttila,Pekka Kärkkäinen,2008-03-27 Sense perception is one of the classical themes in philosophy Although perhaps not among the most exciting topics it is traditionally considered a necessary preamble to many of these such as the mind body relationship consciousness knowledge and scepticism This introductory role is not the only reason for the philosophical interest in perception It is also a phenomenon which raises important questions about what is perceived how a perceptual experience is caused what the content of perception is whether this content is conceptual how perception is related to epistemic attitudes and so on While philosophical psychology is the main area in which perception is dealt with in contemporary philosophy it is also discussed in the theory of knowledge cognitive science philosophical aesthetics and metaphysics In recent years the rich tradition of various philosophical theories of perception has been increasingly studied by scholars of the history of philosophy of mind It may be added that there is of course a large number of scientific studies of perception in psychology physiology and contemporary neuroscience
