Annotated Bibliography
Topic: Daycare Centers

Proposed Thesis: The result of putting young children in a daycare center has its advantages and disadvantages throughout their time in the environment.

"Daycare Centers: Advantages and Disadvantages." Baby Center. BabyCenter, L.L.C., n.d. Web. 29 Oct 2012. <http://www.babycenter.com/0_daycare-centers-advantages-and-disadvantages_6050.bc?page=1>.

This website simply states the advantages and disadvantages of putting one's child in a daycare center. It states that daycare centers are beneficial because they are structured environments, they have "clear cut rules," they are stable, the kids are engaged in learning activities, and they have the opportunity to socialize with other kids. For parents, putting their children in daycare, they know what is expected of them and vice versa for the caregivers. Also, research has been done that says some kids in prestigious daycare centers have an "intellectual edge" over kids in a different kind of care. As for the disadvantages, daycare is costly and you have to worry with backup care when they aren't open. Plus, the special time that a mom spends with her child is limited while they are concentrated in daycare. The website also mentions the National Association for the Education of Young Children, in which quality daycare centers follow many guidelines set by this association. I think this quick article is very helpful for not just me, but parents as well. It was a brief description of the advantages versus disadvantages, not redundant information that was just threw in there. It actually contained details and logic within the explanation.
