Asian Higher Education An International Handbook And Reference Guide:

Asian Higher Education Gerard Postiglione, Grace C. L. Mak, 1997-03-25 Asia is home to a majority of the world's population and has an expanding economy. As the West engages in greater interaction with the East, developments in Asia have increasingly greater significance throughout the world. Higher education is central to the tremendous expansion of Asia. This reference book surveys the state of higher education in 20 representative Asian countries. Countries profiled include advanced industrial nations such as Japan and Singapore as well as more impoverished lands such as Bangladesh. Chapters are written by expert contributors and each author cites current literature and research. An introductory essay overviews the nature of higher education in Asia and an extensive bibliography concludes the work. Developments in Asia have tremendous significance for the rest of the world. Asia has a rapidly expanding economy and is home to most of the world's population. It is a land of tremendous size and equally great diversity. At times Asia seems to be an economic and military threat to the West while on other occasions it seems to be a valuable partner in the emerging global economy. The technological, political, and economic developments that have taken place in Asia are largely the result of Asian higher education. Thus Asian higher education is important not only to the Eastern but also to the Western world. This reference book surveys the state of higher education in Asia and thus provides a valuable perspective on changes in Eastern society. An introductory essay discusses the current state of Asian higher education and provides a useful context for the rest of the work. The remainder of the book contains alphabetically arranged entries on higher education in twenty representative Asian countries. Some of the countries like China and India have enormous populations. Others like Japan and Singapore have witnessed tremendous economic prosperity. And some like Iran and North Korea have great political significance. Each entry is written by an expert contributor and provides background information, a discussion of current issues, and an examination of future trends. Entries cite current literature and research and the volume concludes with an extensive bibliography.

The Performance of Asian Higher Education Gwilym Croucher, Chuanyi Wang, Jiale Yang, 2022-07-28 With contributions from several Asia Pacific countries, this book compares performance and productivity in higher education from the perspective of institutional change. Using multiple methods and datasets and including case studies from Australia, Cambodia, China, Malaysia, India, and Japan, the authors focus on shedding light on the efficacy of institutional policies and reforms. The worldwide Gross Enrolment Ratio (GER) in higher education neared 40 per cent in 2020 due to the dramatic increase in enrolments in many developing economies especially in Asia This significant increase in the number of students in higher education brings great benefits but requires major ongoing investment by governments around the world This growth has followed waves of internationalization and marketization and universities are undergoing substantial change in their organization and character The goal of many institutional policies and reforms has been better performance and higher productivity Yet little is known about whether they have achieved this aim Students government officials and university leaders all have the right to ask whether the outcomes of higher education justify the costs of running the system Although increasing attention has been paid to higher education institutions management and operation the study of higher education performance and productivity is still in its relative infancy compared to other enterprises Written for students and scholars interested in higher education management and productivity this book will also appeal to government officials and university leaders keen to know more about institutional reform and how to achieve better performance

Higher Education and the State Roger Goodman, Takehiko Kariya, John Taylor, 2013-05-13 The relationship between the state and higher education institutions has always been a complex one The state itself in this context is a heterogeneous mix of elite people bureaucrats politicians committees of co opted academics and business leader and it increasingly faces pressures from diverse stakeholders including students themselves an increasingly diverse community staff families employers and businesses local regional and multinational This volume explores the rapidly evolving relationship between the state and higher education in Europe and in East Asia through a combination of empirical studies secondary analyses and personal observations from many of the leading scholars in the field of comparative education studies A scenario emerges where the state seeks to encourage stakeholder influence while at the same time acts to moderate such influence in order to ensure that wider objectives are satisfied markets are controlled elements of demand and supply are manipulated and funding is targeted to meet particular policy priorities through a model that is described as controlled stakeholder steering which offers a new explanation of the relationship between the state and higher education certainly in the countries addressed in this book

Higher Education in East Asia , 2009-01-01 Although scholars in various academic fields have a keen interest in the social institutions that reproduce the university system generally their gaze has been averted from a close analysis of the professors themselves This volume aims to initiate a project of describing academic traditions at universities in East Asia The present neoliberal discourses of university reform amplify the need for just such an ethnographic study of the professoriate How does change toward institutional models resembling the Western university affect the traditional local cultures of the professoriate in Asia The ten authors first document changes to both the workplace and workers and then analyze how these reforms have affected the very nature of academic work and scholarship in East Asia This volume is of special interest to scholars in the fields of comparative education Asian Studies and sociocultural anthropology as well as academic and administrative staff employed at universities in Asia Higher
