Racial Dimensions of Life Writing in Education Lucy E. Bailey,KaaVonia Hinton,2022-09-01 This collection presents life writing projects that explore or represent the racial dimensions of life writing research in diverse educational spaces using diverse methodologies and inquiry approaches We believe this collection is long overdue To quote Melva R Grant and Signe E Kastberg s succinct phrasing this volume racialized inquiry matters While some rich texts explore the racial aspects and anti racist potential of social science research Blee 2018 Lopez Sefa Dei Twine Warren 2000 and include examples from educational contexts there are no collections which focus on the intersections of life writing inquiry as educative projects that highlight racial dimensions of the work and lives under study Drawing from Toni Morrison s enduring wisdom a visionary writer whose work has explored the racial dimensions of culture and lived experience we centralize race in life writing in this collection rather than obscuring it or leaving it as a lurking absent presence in the craft Racial Dimensions of Life Writing Research offers a wealth of ideas and perspectives from which scholars teachers and students can draw to support their work The 14 chapters in this collection attend to national international and local concerns include varied theoretical and methodological approaches and reflect a range of ethnic and racial heritages Chapters consider practical theoretical ethical and educational issues involved in projects concerning under represented educational actors important for the terrain of life writing The authors include established and emerging scholars university researchers directors and professors academic advisors graduate and undergraduate students activists and former elementary and secondary school teachers It is our hope that this volume will spark conversation debate and reflection and will be a valuable resource that inspires scholarship about how race and its intersections shape the life writing inquiry process

More Than One Struggle John Aaron Dougherty,1997 Audacious Agitation Vincent D. Willis,2021-08-01 In the decade after the landmark 1954 Brown v Board decision it became clear to students parents and community members alike that court cases were insufficient in the pursuit of educational justice This book explores what made it difficult for educational equality to become obtainable after the Brown decision as well as the resilience and activism of younger Black students who sought to enforce equality even when the government could not. The 1954 ruling enabled public schools to reach a degree of desegregation but did not enable them to become the learning institutions they could have become due to the actions of white officials and local white communities who construed Black youth's articulation of educational redress as adversarial instead of as a communal enterprise. Importantly, Audacious Agitation does not portray Black youth as objects of study but rather highlights their powerful agency in increasing opportunity for themselves through the educational system.

The Right to Learn Linda Darling-Hammond, 1997-05-12 This well organized and meticulously documented book presents an agenda for re-creating public education. Washington Post Darling-Hammond's central claim is well worth listening to. New York Times Book Review Classrooms and schools centered on learning and learners are intellectually rigorous places exciting and humane.

"Give Me the Worst of Them, and I'll Make Them the Best" Muhammad A. Khalifa, 2008 Just Schools Martha Minow, Richard A. Shweder, Hazel Rose Markus, 2008-04-22 Educators and policymakers who share the goal of equal opportunity in schools often hold differing notions of what entails a just school in multicultural America. Some emphasize the importance of integration and uniform treatment for all while others point to the benefits of honoring cultural diversity in ways that make minority students feel at home. In Just Schools noted legal scholars, educators and social scientists examine schools with widely divergent methods of fostering equality in order to explore the possibilities and limits of equal education today. The contributors to Just Schools combine empirical research with rich ethnographic accounts to paint a vivid picture of the quest for justice in classrooms around the nation. Legal scholar Martha Minow considers the impact of school choice reforms on equal educational opportunities. Psychologist Hazel Rose Markus examines culturally sensitive programs where students exhibit superior performance on standardized tests and feel safer and more interested in school than those in color-blind programs. Anthropologist Heather Lindkvist reports on how Somali Muslims in Lewiston, Maine invoked the American ideal of inclusiveness in winning dress code exemptions and accommodations for Islamic rituals in the local public school. Political scientist Austin Sarat looks at a school system in which everyone endorses multiculturalism but holds conflicting views on the extent to which culturally sensitive practices should enter into the academic curriculum. Anthropologist Barnaby Riedel investigates how a private Muslim school in Chicago aspires to universalist ideals and education scholar James Banks argues that schools have a responsibility to prepare students for citizenship in a multicultural society. Anthropologist John Bowen offers a nuanced interpretation of educational commitments in France and the headscarf controversy in French schools. Anthropologist Richard Shweder concludes the volume by connecting debates about diversity in schools with a broader conflict between national assimilation and cultural autonomy. As America's schools strive to accommodate new students from around the world, Just Schools provides a provocative and insightful look at the different ways we define and promote justice in schools and in society at large.
