Murphy,2012-04-02 Metaphor and the Slave Trade provides compelling evidence of the hidden but unmistakable traces of the transatlantic slave trade that persist in West African discourse Through an examination of metaphors that describe the trauma loss and suffering associated with the commerce in human lives this book shows how the horrors of slavery are communicated from generation to generation Laura T Murphy's insightful new readings of canonical West African fiction autobiography drama and poetry explore the relationship between memory and metaphor and emphasize how repressed or otherwise marginalized memories can be transmitted through images tropes rumors and fears By analyzing the unique codes through which West Africans have represented the slave trade this work foregrounds African literary contributions to Black Atlantic discourse and draws attention to the archive that metaphor unlocks for scholars of all disciplines and fields of study Machado de Assis G. Psychological Constructs and the Craft of African Fiction of Yesteryears Linus Tongwo Asong, 2012 The novel remains the most popular genre in the African literary landscape In the very large body of criticism that has been devoted to the craft of African fiction this very stimulating study of six African novels will hold its own distinctive place for a long while It brings to African critical thought not only an exceptional acumen of interpretation and analysis but something much more important to most of the previous serious literary study than mere technical dissection a keen sense of the experience and imaginative truth that make Asong's selected African texts living books as well as authentic record of human and moral values Many of Asong's perceptions are not only critically shrewd but humanly searching alert to aesthetic quality and invention No one interested in creative criticism of African fiction will read this book without finding its approach a challenge to his or her own reading of African fiction and a stimulus to understanding the growth and enduring richness of the best of the African novel The book balances nicely in its choice of three texts in English and three in French the two dominant colonial languages in Africa South of the Sahara Even more interesting is the fact that although all the French texts have been translated into English Asong opts to treat the three in the original language in which they were conceived and executed a decision which keeps the reader as close as possible to the original idiom

Bibliography of American doctoral dissertations on African literature compiled by Nancy J Schmidt Worlds Within Vilashini Cooppan, 2009-10-08 Worlds Within tracks the changing forms of novels and nations against a long postcolonial twentieth century. While globalization has sometimes been understood to supersede national borders, this book distances itself from before and after sequences in order to trace the intersection between national and global politics. Drawing from psychoanalytic and deconstructive accounts of identity, difference and desire, Worlds Within explores the making and unmaking of ideas of nation, globe, race and gender in the late imperialism of Joseph Conrad, the anticolonial nationalism and nascent Third Worldism of W. E. B. Du Bois and Frantz Fanon, and the decolonizing nationalisms and postcolonial cosmopolitanisms of novelistic descendants such as the Indian and Indo Caribbean writers Salman Rushdie, Amitav Ghosh, V. S. Naipaul and David Dabydeen, the anglophone and francophone African writers Chinua Achebe, Ngugi wa Thiong'o, Assia Djebar and Tsitsi Dangaremba, and the Cuban postmodern novelist and theorist Severo Sarduy. Across this global field, national identity is subtended by transnational affiliations and expressed through diverse and intersecting literary forms. The Francophone African Text Kwaku Addae Gyasi, 2006 Focusing on the African writer and the language of the former colonial power, The Francophone African Text: Translation and the Postcolonial Experience highlights the writer's re-appropriation of the foreign language in the creative writing process. It calls attention to the African writer's use of French as a process of creative translation in which the writer's words form a hybrid code that compels the original French to refer to the indigenous African language for meaning. Examining a group of works under the theme of translation, this book reveals that a consideration of both ideological and linguistic elements enhances understanding of the subject from the broader perspective of postcolonial discourse. World Englishes Kingsley Bolton, Braj B. Kachru, 2006 The Other Tongue Braj B. Kachru, 1992 When The Other Tongue appeared in 1982 it was called required reading for all those concerned with English teaching in non-native situations, from the classroom teacher to the policy planner. John Platt, English World Wide and an extremely useful and stimulating collection. William C. Ritchie, Language It Introduced, refreshingly new perspectives for understanding the spread and functions of English around the world. This dramatically revised volume contains eight new chapters replacing or updating more than half of the first edition. The Other Tongue is the first attempt to integrate and address provocative issues relevant to a deeper understanding of the forms and functions of English within different sociolinguistic, cross-cultural and cross-linguistic contexts. The volume discusses linguistic, literary, pedagogical and attitudinal issues related to world Englishes. Critical Perspectives on Postcolonial African Children's and Young Adult Literature Meena Khorana, 1998-04-08 The past few years mark a growing scholarly interest in African children's literature in the United States. Several books have recently been published on the subject and the number of papers on African children's literature presented at conferences or published in scholarly journals also seems to have increased. These publications are becoming more and more sophisticated as scholars move away from general country surveys or analyses of publishing.

conditions and instead analyze literary structures themes and illustrations or apply Marxist feminist or postcolonial theories to interpret literary works The question of an authentic voice in postcolonial African children s literature has emerged as a central concern to those who care about books for African children and young adults Also of importance is the matter of how Africa is presented in literature for children who do not live on that continent The essays in this book either take a postcolonial or revisionist approach to the study of colonial literature or discuss books published after decolonization The introductory essay provides a general analysis of the key issues facing the publication of children s books in postcolonial Africa issues of national identity language appropriate genres and relevant themes to inculcate a nationalistic outlook in children and young adults The chapters that follow are located within this broad framework and are written by expert contributors While these essays reflect the scholarly interests and specialization of each author they also span the entire field of African children s literature The first group of chapters surveys African children s literature from a variety of angles and explores such topics as literacy and the publishing culture in Africa the role and importance of awards Nigerian young adult literature and the relevance of folktales The book then turns to a discussion of books about Africa written by Western authors for Western readers which often project values and perspectives that betray a continuing colonial bias The last part of the book examines more specialized themes and concerns

Challenging Territory Christian Riegel,1997-05 In a postmodern and postcolonial age how do we approach the writing of Margaret Laurence Challenging Territory demands of the reader a re evaluation of the basic assumptions that underlie their understanding of Laurence s life and writing by addressing the full range of her writing Laurence is presented as Canadian colonial and postcolonial subject as feminist humanist and political active individual and as essayist translator journalist memoir writer and fiction writer The essays stake out a critical territory as well as offer a challenge to territory previously mapped by the criticism in addition to charting critical space never before traced
