Hot Takes Sadie Babits, 2025-06-02 It s Monday morning and your editor assigns you a story about a housing project where several residents have been hospitalized because of heat stroke Is this a climate story Is it a climate justice story No one would have thought so twenty years ago In fact when many of us were attending journalism school or reporting our first stories in newsrooms those terms did not even exist Today it s a whole different story Whether you cover the environment healthcare economics politics sports or any other beat the fact is you need to understand climate change to do your job Because climate affects every human and animal and plant on Earth that means it affects all our reporting You may know the basics when it comes to the science of human driven climate change But how about the major policies that determine global climate action or the growing number of legal climate related cases Have you considered what it means to practice journalism focused on solutions rather than offering up a puff piece What about how to cover the vast inequities generated from human caused climate change or how race and socioeconomics interact with climate Are you prepared to detect and debunk misinformation and to remove bias from your stories Climate change is dramatically shifting so many aspects of our world journalism included So whether you re still a student or a fifty year veteran chances are you could use some up to date guidance on how to report on this critical and endlessly complex issue You have come to the right place No resource has all the answers but Hot Takes engages the big questions that will determine how climate change is covered and the stories we tell our audiences and ourselves
