Roura, 2012-03-13 The aim of this book is to provide a new insight on Neanderthal behaviour using the data recovered in level J of Roman rockshelter north eastern Spain Due to the sedimentary dynamics that formed the Roman deposit the occupation layers are characterized by a high temporal resolution which makes it easier to interpret the archaeological data in behavioural terms. In addition, the different analytical domains: geoarchaeology, lithic technology, zooarchaeology, taphonomy, anthracology, palaeontology, are addressed from a spatial perspective that is basic to understand human behaviour but also to evaluate the behavioural inferences in the framework of the archaeological formation processes.

Excavations at Tlachtga, Hill of Ward, Co. Meath, Ireland Stephen Davis, Caitríona Moore, 2024-04-30 Initial remote sensing survey at Tlachtga Co Meath in 2011/12 highlighted the presence of multiple partially overlapping phases of enclosure at the site. Three subsequent seasons of excavation provided critical interpretive evidence with over 15 000 fragments of animal bone, human remains, charred plant material, evidence of metalworking and a hoard of Anglo-Saxon silver coins dating to the late 10th century AD. The main activity at the site spans four broad periods and two main phases of monumental construction: a late Bronze Age to early Iron Age Hillfort Phase (1100–400 BC) and a late Iron Age to early medieval AD 400–600 ringfort phase associated with a smaller foundation enclosure, the Southern Enclosure. This ringfort phase was remodeled later in the early medieval period (9th–10th century AD) and augmented by a phase of mound construction in the mid 10th century AD. This is contemporary with the deposition of the coin hoard east of the main complex in an apparent craft working area. The final phase of the central mound indicates the construction of a timber stockade, most likely in the 12th century, again with significant craft activity. This volume represents the excavation of at least four loci within the broader monumental landscape of Tlachtga, charting its progression from Bronze Age hillfort to pre-Anglo-Norman power display mound. The excavations at the Hill of Ward and this publication were made possible through funding by the National Monuments Service via the Royal Irish Academy archaeological research excavation grants and by Meath County Council with additional support by the Office of Public Works and the Heritage Council.

Archaeological Artefacts as Material Culture Linda Hurcombe, 2014-05-12 This book is an introduction to the study of artefacts, setting them in a social context rather than using a purely scientific approach. Drawing on a range of different cultures and extensively illustrated, Archaeological Artefacts and Material Culture covers everything from recovery strategies and recording procedures to interpretation through typology, ethnography and experiment, and every type of material including wood, fibers, bones, hides and adhesives, stone, clay and metals. With over seventy illustrations, with almost fifty in full colour, this book not only provides the tools an archaeologist will need to interpret past societies from their artefacts but also a keen appreciation of the beauty and tactility involved in working with these fascinating objects. This is a book no archaeologist should be without, but it will also appeal to anybody interested in the interaction between people and objects.

Ritual bones or common waste J. Thilderkvist, 2013-11-01 This book addresses the problems of identifying human actions behind finds of bones in settlement archaeology exemplified with the identification of ritual deposits In order to formulate a methodological framework for approaching the identification of ritual deposits different methods are tested on four Early Medieval case studysites Dongjum and Leeuwarden two artificial dwelling mounds situated in the then undiked salt marches of the Northern Netherlands Midlaren an inland settlement in Drenthe also in the Northern Netherlands and finally Upp kra a central place in the South of Sweden The bone fragments from the four materials are studied in a five step process of definition description identification interpretation and explanation The deposits are discussed with the help of various archaeological ethnographic and historical sources The results of the analysis lead to a methodological framework for understanding individual deposits based on a holistic perspective where all information is regarded as potentially valuable various methods are taken into consideration and simplification is avoided

The Analysis of Burned Human Remains Christopher W. Schmidt, Steven A. Symes, 2011-10-10 This unique reference provides a primary source for osteologists and the medical legal community for the understanding of burned bone remains in forensic or archaeological contexts It describes in detail the changes in human bone and soft tissues as a body burns at both the chemical and gross levels and provides an overview of the current procedures in burned bone study Case studies in forensic and archaeological settings aid those interested in the analysis of burned human bodies from death scene investigators to biological anthropologists looking at the recent or ancient dead Includes the diagnostic patterning of color changes that give insight to the severity of burning the positioning of the body and presence or absence of soft tissues during the burning event Chapters on bones and teeth give step by step recommendations for how to study and recognize burned hard tissues

Economic valuation of ecosystem services provided by deep-sea sponges Ottaviani, D., 2020-12-16 This report represents the first economic valuation of the ecosystem services provided by deep sea sponges in the North Atlantic It is based on information available in the scientific literature at the time of writing but also indicates the research areas where discoveries and research advances are shortly expected The report is aimed at a generic public with no specialized knowledge on sponges or on economic valuation It is outlined in a way to provide essential background information but makes reference to a comprehensive list of scientific publications for further insights

Recent Advances in Ageing and Sexing Animal Bones Deborah Ruscillo, 2015-06-30 This volume in the ICAZ series deals with the technical advances made over the last twenty years in the field of ageing and sexing animal bones The analysis of ancient DNA holds great possibilities for sexing certain faunal assemblages though by no means all which is an urgent issue in the study of hunting and animal husbandry It can be assumed that our forebears used more subtle taxonomic criteria than we do today and it is important therefore that we are able to recognise traits that will allow for more accurate classification in terms of calendar age or sex The eighteen papers in this book examine the state of research for various techniques of age sex determination and assess potential future development

The Global History of Paleopathology Jane E. Buikstra, Charlotte Roberts, 2012-06-07 The first comprehensive global history of the discipline of paleopathology The Bioarchaeology of Metabolic Bone Disease

Megan B. Brickley, Rachel Ives, 2010-07-26 The Bioarchaeology of Metabolic Bone Disease provides a comprehensive and invaluable source of information on this important group of diseases. It is an essential guide for those engaged in either basic recording or in depth research on human remains from archaeological sites. The range of potential tools for investigating metabolic diseases of bone are far greater than for many other conditions and building on clinical investigations this book will consider gross surface features visible using microscopic examination histological and radiological features of bone that can be used to help investigate metabolic bone diseases. Clear photographs and line drawings illustrate gross histological and radiological features associated with each of the conditions. Covers a range of issues pertinent to the study of metabolic bone disease in archaeological skeletal material including the problems that frequent co existence of these conditions in individuals living in the past raises the preservation of human bone and the impact this has on the ability to suggest a diagnosis of a condition. Includes a range of conditions that can lead to osteopenia and osteoporosis including previous investigations of these conditions in archaeological bone Sand, Stones, and Bones. Paleoradiology R.K. Chhem, D.R. Brothwell, 2007-11-04 Paleoradiology is the use of X rays and advanced medical imaging modalities in the evaluation of ancient human and animal skeletons as well as biological materials from archaeological sites. Paleoradiological studies have been performed on mummies skeletal remains and fossils to determine their sex and age at death. Diagnostic paleoradiology is the use of X ray studies to detect ancient diseases. The broad range of themes and imaging techniques in this volume reflects four decades of research undertaken by Don Brothwell in the fields of anthropology human paleopathology and zooarchaeology combined with two decades of skeletal radiology experience during which Rethy Chhem read over 150 000 skeletal X ray and CT studies Arch Of Society Thomas Levy, 1995-01-01 This volume marks a departure from earlier descriptive archaeological summaries of the Holy Land. Taking an anthropological and socio economic perspective many of the leading archaeologists who work in Israel and Jordan today present timely and concise summaries of the archaeology of this region. Chronologically organized each chapter outlines the major cultural transitions which occurred in a given archaeological period. To explain the processes which were responsible for culture change a review is made of the most recent research concerning settlement patterns innovations and technology religion and ideology and social organization. The material culture of every period of human history in the Holy Land is explored from the earliest prehistoric hominids through the Biblical and historical periods and up to modern 20th century times. Each chapter is accompanied by settlement pattern maps and a plate highlighting the major artifacts which archaeologists use to identify the material culture of the period. In addition windows are presented which focus on major social issues and controversies such as The Agricultural Revolution the Israelite Conquest of Canaan and Ancient Metal Working and Social Change. This volume should provide students and the general reader with a useful reference volume concerning the archaeology of societies which lived and live in the Holy Land
