Hixon, John Forman, 2006-03-12 As we take stock of all that this Winter issue of Nectar contains it is the theme of suffering which stands out the most and begs for attention and inspection Whether this suffering is of an emotional nature a matter of physical ill health a case of mental unrest or of intellectual unsurety it is a constant and nagging consideration on the minds of all beings in relativity And it is just for this type of reason that teachings of the kind that appear in Nectar are so important and so necessary for they are brought to bear upon the presence of suffering in healing fashion by the words of illumined souls such as Lord Buddha Jesus Christ Sri Sarada Devi and others It was this latter the Holy Mother who stated Misery suffering and pain where will they go my child They are our companions in life Such admittances on the part of holy beings bring both relief and clarity to the situation acting as a soothing lenitive to both body and mind Moreover the soul may also need amelioration at times and teachings of a higher order are in store for that end As one Christian mystic was reported to have said If you knew the purpose and benefit of your suffering you would not ask that it be taken away leading us to conclude that suffering plays a role in both neutralizing the effects created by us on the field of action and weaning us off of all of its causes so that we strive for higher existence

Living Death in Early Modern Drama James Alsop, 2024-07-31 This book explores historical socio political and metatheatrical readings of a whole host of dying bodies and risen corpses each part of a long tradition of living death on stage Just as zombies ghouls and the undead in modern media often stand in for present day concerns early modern writers frequently imagined living death in complex ways that allowed them to address contemporary anxieties These include fresh bleeding bodies and body parts ghostly Lord Mayors and dying characters who must carefully choose their last words or have those words chosen for them by the living As well as offering fresh interpretations of well known plays such as Middleton s The Lady s Tragedy and Webster s The White Devil this innovative study also sheds light on less well known works such as the anonymous The Tragedy of Locrine Marston s Antonio s Revenge and Munday s mayoral pageants Chruso thriambos and Chrysanaleia The author demonstrates that wherever characters in early modern drama appear to straddle the line between this world and the next it is rarely a simple matter of life and death This book will be of great interest to students scholars and practitioners in theatre and performance studies and cultural and social studies

Making Sense of Death Gerry R. Cox, Robert Bendiksen, Robert G. Stevenson, 2003 Provides discussions on the meaning of life and death This anthology explores the process of meaning making in the face of death and the roles of religion and spirituality at times of loss the profound and devastating experience of loss in the death of a spouse or a child a psychological model of spirituality and dimensions of spirituality The Meaning of Life in Romantic Poetry and Poetics Ross

Wilson, 2009-01-02 This volume brings together an impressive range of established and emerging scholars to investigate the meaning of life in Romantic poetry and poetics This investigation involves sustained attention to a set of challenging questions at the heart of British Romantic poetic practice and theory Is poetry alive for the Romantic poets If so how Does life always mean life In a range of essays from a variety of complementary perspectives a number of major Romantic poets are examined in detail The fate of Romantic conceptions of life in later poetry also receives attention Through for examples a revision of Blake s relationship to so called rationalism a renewed examination of Wordsworth s fascination with country graveyards an exploration of Shelley s concept of survival and a discussion of the notions of life in Byron Kierkegaard and Mozart this volume opens up new and exciting terrain in Romantic poetry s relation to literary theory the history of philosophy ethics and aesthetics What tumors teach us Jana Šmardová, 2024-01-01 Lze se pro dobr fungov n lidsk spole
