Talking Animals in British Children's Fiction, 1786-1914 Tess Cosslett, 2017-03-02 In her reappraisal of canonical works such as Black Beauty Beautiful Joe Wind in the Willows and Peter Rabbit Tess Cosslett traces how nineteenth century debates about the human and animal intersected with or left their mark on the venerable genre of the animal story written for children Effortlessly applying a range of critical approaches from Bakhtinian ideas of the carnivalesque to feminist postcolonial and ecocritical theory she raises important questions about the construction of the child reader the qualifications of the implied author and the possibilities of children's literature compared with literature written for adults Perhaps most crucially Cosslett examines how the issues of animal speech and animal subjectivity were managed at a time when the possession of language and consciousness had become a vital sign of the difference between humans and animals Topics of great contemporary concern such as the relation of the human and the natural masculine and feminine child and adult are investigated within their nineteenth century contexts making this an important book for nineteenth century scholars children's literature specialists and historians of science and childhood

Memorializing Animals during the Romantic Period Chase Pielak, 2016-04-22 Early nineteenth century British literature is overpopulated with images of dead and deadly animals as Chase Pielak observes in his study of animal encounters in the works of Charles and Mary Lamb John Clare Samuel Taylor Coleridge Lord Byron and William Wordsworth These encounters Pielak suggests coincide with anxieties over living alongside both animals and cemeteries in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries Pielak traces the linguistic physical and psychological interruptions occasioned by animal encounters from the heart of communal life the table to the countryside and finally into and beyond the wild cemetery He argues that Romantic period writers use language that ultimately betrays itself in beastly disruptions exposing anxiety over what it means to be human what happens at death the consequences of living together and the significance of being remembered Extending his discussion past an emphasis on animal rights to an examination of animals in their social context Pielak shows that these animal representations are both inherently important and a foreshadowing of the ways we continue to need images of dead and deadly Romantic beasts

Animal Narratology Joela Jacobs,2020-12-15 Animal Narratology interrogates what it means to narrate to speak speak for on behalf of and to voice or represent life beyond the human which is in itself as different as insects bears and dogs are from each other and yet more as individual as a single mouse horse or puma The varied contributions to this interdisciplinary Special Issue highlight assumptions about the human perception of attitude toward and responsibility for the animals that are read and written about thus demonstrating that just as the animal does not exist neither does the human In their zoopoetic focus the analyses are aware that animal narratology ultimately always contains an approximation of an animal perspective in human terms and terminology yet they make clear that what matters is how the animal is approximated and that there is an effort to approach and encounter the non human in the first place Many of the analyses come to the conclusion that literary animals give readers the opportunity to expand their own points of view both on themselves and others by adopting another's perspective to the degree that such an endeavor is possible Ultimately the contributions call for a recognition of the many spaces moments and modes in which human lives are entangled with those of animals one of which is located within the creative bounds of storytelling

Price,2023-10-31 Speech and Silence in Contemporary Children s Literature brings a fresh perspective to a central literary question Who speaks by examining a variety of represented silences These include children who do not speak do not yet speak effectively or speak on behalf of others A rich and unexamined literary archive explores the problematics of children who are literally silent or metaphorically so because they cannot communicate effectively with adults or peers This project centers children s literature in the question of voice by considering disability gender race and ecocriticism Children s literature rests on a paradox at the root of its own genre it is produced by an adult author writing to a constructed idea of what children should be By reading a range of contemporary children s literature this book scrutinizes how such texts narrate the child s journey from communicative alterity to a place of empowered adult speech Sometimes the child s verbal enclosure enables privacy and resistance At other times silence is coerced or imposed or arises from bodily impairment Children may act as intermediaries speaking on behalf of species that cannot Recently we have seen children exercise their voices on the world stage and as authors In all cases the texts analyzed here reveal speech as a minefield to be traversed Children who talk too much too little or with insufficient expertise pose problems to themselves and others Implicitly and sometimes explicitly they attempt to hold adults to account inside and outside the text Speech and Silence in Contemporary Children s Literature addresses this underconceptualized subject in what will be an important text for scholars of children s literature childhood studies English disability studies gender studies race studies ecopedagogy and education

The Speaking Animal Alison Suen,2015-10-02 Animals regularly populate philosophical texts as a foil to illustrate what it means to be human How should we understand this human animal divide Not only does it inform us of who we are it also tells us how we should relate to the larger non human world The Speaking Animal interrogates the human animal divide by looking at our linguistic differences how the speaking human subject is constructed through its opposition to the dumb animal Alison Suen begins with an analysis of the role of language in animal ethics with an eye toward the voice voiceless opposition that is at work in animal advocacy After offering a critical analysis of the ethical and political significance of speaking for animals the booktakes on a more constructive turn going against the usual interpretation of language as a capacity that allows us to reason Instead it argues that our language capacity is also a relational capacity Language is that which enables us to develop kinship with others including animal others
