Annapolis Past's Historical Archaeology In Annapolis Maryland

Roberta Gilchrist

Annapolis Past Historical Archaeology In Annapolis Maryland:

Annapolis Past Paul A. Shackel, Paul R. Mullins, Mark S. Warner, 1998 The Archaeology in Annapolis project has been one of the most important undertaken by historical archaeologists. Notable for its emphasis on public education and its use of citywide research, it has carried out an innovative analysis of material culture to show how a wide range of social and economic classes residing in Maryland's capital responded over time to a changing world. Annapolis Past offers a close look at the trend-setting project. Drawing on more than a decade of study, it provides a cross section of the substantive and theoretical issues that Archaeology in Annapolis has explored. The volume gathers the work of some of the most innovative authorities in historical archaeology along with that of younger scholars who participated in the project, all of whom demonstrate the cutting-edge approaches that have won it wide respect. And despite differences in theoretical orientations, all the contributors have used Annapolis's archaeological data to interpret the emergence of capitalism as both a dynamic market force and an equally dynamic body of social rules. In studies of sites ranging from eighteenth-century formal gardens to nineteenth- and twentieth-century African American neighborhoods, the book explores the development of modern society as reflected in such examples of material culture as food printer's type, tableware, and landscape architecture, showing how these features of everyday life were used to reproduce, modify, and resist capitalist society over three centuries. It also investigates subordinated groups in Annapolis: African Americans, women, the working class, to provide insight into racism, class structure, and consumer society in the early years of the industrial revolution. Annapolis Past clearly demonstrates that traditional objects of study, like Georgian mansions and colonial crafts, cannot be understood without considering their complete social and economic milieu. It presents a fascinating mosaic of human activity that shows how archaeologists can interpret the different social, temporal, and theoretical pieces of a city's history, and it provides anthropologists, economists, and historians with an example of the multifaceted effects of capitalism and industrialization in one corner of America.

Historical Archaeology Martin Hall, Stephen W. Silliman, 2009-02-09 This volume offers lively current debates and case studies in historical archaeology selected from around the world, including North America, Latin America, Africa, the Pacific, and Europe. Authored by 19 experts in the field, it explores how historical archaeologists think about their work, piecing together information from both material culture and documents in an attempt to understand the lives of the people and societies they study. It engages with current theory in an accessible manner, truly global in its approach but avoiding subsuming local experiences of people into global patterns. It summarizes not only the current state of historical archaeology but also sets the course for the field in decades to come. Historical archaeology Roberta Gilchrist, 2005 A Historical Archaeology of Delaware Lu Ann De Cunzio, 2004 By analyzing what she describes as richly detailed archaeological site biographies, De Cunzio reconstructs how Delaware's farming people actively created their identities and shaped their interactions at home, at work, at church, and in the marketplace as they began to confront industrial capitalism. Informed by a contextual interpretive perspective this valuable work reveals the complex interrelationships among environment technology economy social order and cultural praxis that defined the cultures of agriculture in Delaware during the last three centuries Jacket

Leone,Jocelyn E. Knauf,2015-05-27 This new edition of Historical Archaeologies of Capitalism shows where the study of capitalism leads archaeologists scholars and activists Essays cover a range of geographic colonial and racist contexts around the Atlantic basin Latin America and the Caribbean North America the North Atlantic Europe and Africa Here historical archaeologists use current capitalist theory to show the results of creating social classes employing racism and beginning and expanding the global processes of resource exploitation Scholars in this volume also do not avoid the present condition of people discussing the lasting effects of capitalism s methods resistance to them their archaeology and their point to us now Chapters interpret capitalism in the past the processes that make capitalist expansion possible and the worldwide sale and reduction of people Authors discuss how to record and interpret these This book continues a global historical archaeology one that is engaged with other disciplines peoples and suppressed political and economic histories Authors in this volume describe how new identities are created reshaped and made to appear natural Chapters in this second edition also continue to address why historical archaeologists study capitalism and the relevance of this work expanding on one of the important contributions of historical archaeologies of capitalism critical archaeology

Global Archaeological Theory Pedro Paulo Funari,Andrés Zarankin,Emily Stovel,2006-04-07 Archaeological theory has gone through a great upheaval in the last 50 years from the processual theory which wanted to make archaeology more scientific to post processual theory which understands that interpreting human behavior even of past cultures is a subjective study This subjective approach incorporates a plurality of readings thereby implying that different interpretations are always possible allowing us to modify and change our ideas under the light of new information and or interpretive frameworks In this way interpretations form a continuous flow of transformation and change and thus archaeologists do not uncover a real past but rather construct a historical past or a narrative of the past Post processual theory also incorporates a conscious and explicit political interest on the past of the scholar and the subject This includes fields and topics such as gender issues ethnicity class landscapes and consumption This reflects a conscious attempt to also decentralize the discipline from an imperialist point of view to an empowering one Method and theory also means being politically aware and engaged to incorporate diverse critical approaches to improve understanding of the past and the present This book focuses on the fundamental theoretical issues found in the discipline and thus both engages and represents the very rich plurality of the post processual approach to archaeology The book is divided into four sections Issues in Archaeological Theory Archaeological Theory and Method in Action Space and Power in Material Culture and Images as Material Discourse

Envisioning Landscape Dan Hicks,Laura McAtackney,Graham Fairclough,2016-06-03 The contributors to this volume take advantage of the diversity of landscape archaeology to examine the link to heritage the impact on our understanding of temporality and the situated theory that arises out of landscape studies using examples from New York to Northern Ireland Africa to the Argolid

Atlantic Crossing in the Wake of Frederick Douglass Mark Leone,2017-03-06 Atlantic Crossings in the Wake of Frederick Douglass takes its bearings from the Maryland born former slave Frederick Douglass s 1845 sojourn in Ireland and Britain a voyage that is understood in editors Mark P Leone and Lee M Jenkins collection as paradigmatic of the crossings between American African American and Irish historical experience and culture with which the collection as a whole is concerned In crossing the Atlantic Douglass also completed his journey from slavery to freedom and from political and cultural marginality into subjective and creative autonomy Atlantic Crossings traces the stages of that journey in chapters on literature archaeology and spatial culture that consider both roots and routes landscapes of New World slavery subordination and state sponsored surveillance and narratives of resistance liberation and intercultural exchange generated by transatlantic connectivities and the transnational transfer of ideas Contributors Lee M
