Heinemann,Antonette M. Zeiss,2012-12-06 The idea of teamwork in health care emerged at several times during the th 20 centuryas the resultofshifts in the nature and demandsofhealth care and societal needs Examples include medical and surgical teams serving the military in World War II primary care teams staffing Community Health Centers created by President Johnson s War On Poverty and geriatric care teams established to serve the rapidly growing number of aging citizens Collaborative teamwork surfaced as a rational solution to health care needs but political and economic consensus to support widespread implementation was lacking The increasing complexity of providing health care seemed best served by the skills and efforts of interdisciplinary teams but such care was viewed as expensive so evaluation of its effectiveness became essential. There were major problems in conducting such evaluation however. First no clear theory guided the concept and practice of teamwork. Early attempts to employ theoretical constructs explaining the behavioral and organizational phenomena of teamwork borrowed from theories of group dynamics, communication, organizational development and general systems. Further few reliable validated instruments existed to evaluate team process, function or effectiveness. The best early efforts at research and evaluation came from academic centers funded by the Office of Interdisciplinary Programs of the Bureau of Health Professions, 1975-78 and from the Veterans Affairs Interprofessional Team Training Development Program.

Professional School Counseling Rosemary Thompson, Dr. Rosemary Thompson, 2012-04-27
Today's children and adolescents are constantly facing new and unique challenges and school counselors must respond to this by expanding their role and function within the schools. This revised and expanded edition of Thompson's important text explores these issues as well as the necessary steps school counselors need to take in order to adapt and effectively deal with them. Thompson advocates for the need for standards-based school counseling, outlining the framework and benefits of the ASCA National Model and comprehensive guidance and counseling programs. She addresses the newest research in implementing evidence-based practices, the mental health issues that may be faced by children and adolescents, consulting with teachers, parents, administrators and the community, and crisis intervention and management. New to this edition are chapters that focus on minority and disenfranchised students and emphasize the need for school counselors to be able to advocate, coordinate and collaborate on services for these students and their families. This is an essential resource for every school counselor in a time when the profession is becoming increasingly important.

Stress and Coping D M Pestonjee, 1992-03-02 Future historians may well label the second half of the twentieth century as the age of speed Certainly there has been an explosion of information in all areas of human activity and a rapid dissemination of knowledge The result has been a growth in expectations which has affected not only individuals but also larger groups like organisations And this in turn leads to stress Even though stress is a much studied phenomenon it still tends to be defined in vague terms and is surrounded by confusion Professor Pestonjee defines stress as occurring when demands on an individual exceed his adjustment resources While stress is generally believed to have a deleterious effect of health and performance recent research has revealed that a minimal level of stress is essential for effective functioning It is the individual's reaction to stress which makes all the difference and may prove to be harmful Professor Pestonjee has divided his review of Indian research on the subject into three parts In the first section he discusses the concept of stress in relation to ancient Indian scriptures and demonstrates that stress is not just a modern phenomenon Subsequently he discusses stress related diseases like bronchial asthma anxiety neuroses and cancer The next section focuses on the different types of stress experienced by individuals in an organisational setting Available research on various professional groups such as nurses teachers women executives and policemen have been discussed in detail to describe the stress experienced by them The last section deals with coping styles or strategies adopted by individuals to deal with stress The author also examines the various personality and organisational variables which act as moderators of stress Since stress is inevitable the author has highlighted several techniques to counteract stress like yoga meditation and relaxation Dealing with a topic which is of great significance to individuals and organisations in the world today this compendium of research will be of immense interest to psychologists management experts trainers counsellors and research scholars
