Abstract

W. J. G. M. Meijer

Abstract Background: The current literature suggests that the implementation of a new, evidence-based practice (EBP) is a complex process. The purpose of this study was to explore the experiences of nurses who have implemented a new EBP in their clinical practice. Methods: A qualitative study was conducted using semi-structured interviews. Data were analyzed using the grounded theory approach. Results: The study identified four themes: (1) the importance of having a strong clinical champion, (2) the importance of having a strong support system, (3) the importance of having a strong educational system, and (4) the importance of having a strong evaluation system. Conclusion: The study suggests that the implementation of a new EBP is a complex process that requires a strong clinical champion, a strong support system, a strong educational system, and a strong evaluation system.
