Daniel M. Prevedello, 2015-07-13 Because the base of the skull has proven to be one of the most challenging regions of the body to access treatment options were once limited for patients with tumors or lesions in this area. However, with recent advancements and breakthroughs in treatment, patients with skull base tumors now have an array of surgical options that can help them return to leading a normal and active life. The Endoscopic Endonasal Approach (EEA) is an innovative surgical technique used to remove brain tumors and lesions, some as large as softballs, all through the nose. Best Practices of Literacy Leaders
Rita M. Bean, Allison Swan Dagen, 2011-10-27 Bringing together leading experts, this book presents the principles of effective literacy leadership and describes proven methods for improving instruction, assessment, and schoolwide professional development. The book shows how all school staff, including reading specialists and coaches, administrators, teachers, and special educators, can play an active role in nurturing a culture of collaboration and promoting student achievement. Best practices are identified for creating strong elementary and secondary literacy programs, differentiating instruction, supporting English language learners, utilizing technology, building home-school partnerships, and much more. User-friendly features include case examples, guiding questions, and engagement activities in each chapter. An Approach to Literature
Cleanth Brooks, John Thibaut Purser, Robert Penn Warren, 1956 Institutional guide to using AI for research
Xue Zhou, Hosam Al-Samarraie, 2025-07-21 This book provides a comprehensive exploration of the integration of artificial intelligence (AI) into academic research, specifically tailored for higher education institutions and postgraduate research (PGR) students. It addresses the unique challenges and opportunities that these institutions and students encounter when incorporating AI into research. The work emphasises practical case studies, step-by-step guides on AI tools and techniques, ethical considerations in AI usage, and features contributions from experts across various disciplines. Following the introduction, the book delves into the specifics of how AI can enhance academic research, such as literature review, data analysis, and interpretation, and assistance in academic writing across different disciplines. The wide range of topics introduced in this book is supported by practical examples and guidance. This book also explores the landscape of current AI applications in research, the methodologies for effectively leveraging AI technologies, and the critical ethical dimensions of AI work. The importance of interdisciplinary collaboration in expanding the use of AI in research is covered in this book by drawing on expert insights to provide a rich, multifaceted understanding of the potential of AI in academia. The combination of topics in this book can empower PGR students to navigate the complexities of AI in their research. The book is a much-needed compilation prepared by leading scholars in the field of digital technology to help PGRs as well as decision makers determine the best ways to integrate and use AI tools in research. Logistics management operationalised in a healthcare context
Malin Wiger, 2018-05-14 Healthcare improvements are constantly relevant and an important topic. Healthcare is frequently being called upon to be more cost-efficient and still fulfil demands regarding waiting times, quality, and availability.

Experience from structural changes in other contexts gives reason to be positive about the potential for logistics improvements in the healthcare sector as well. From a logistics perspective patients pass different care functions units organisations and health facilities. It is assumed that logistics management knowledge applied in healthcare can lead to lower costs shorter waiting times better patient service shorter treatment times and increased capacity. This dissertation therefore presents an exploration of how logistics management theories can be operationalised in a healthcare context to understand care chain effectiveness. Theoretically the operationalisation is done by systems theory creating compatibility between logistics management theories and the healthcare context. As a first step features for a logistics system forms features for achieving care chain effectiveness. High care chain effectiveness is thus a desired condition and the care delivery system is the tool to achieve it. As the final step in the operationalisation the features for care chain effectiveness are in turn used to analyse today's practices. Empirically the research is based on qualitative data from a single case study with multiple units of analysis. It includes four care units at one of Sweden's university hospitals where the data is gathered through interviews insight into management systems and document analysis. One of the main results is the 21 areas identified for analysing today's practices by means of features for care chain effectiveness. Another main result is the four important concepts revealed through the operationalisation. Lead time the episode of care from order to delivery as the amount of time for patient cases between first contact with healthcare and the last Patient order fulfilment fulfilment of patients needs broken down into several smaller steps performed over time within different care units in one or several organisations consisting of five sub processes order handling diagnosis treatment follow up and discharge. True demand patients needs that is to be met and thus sets what care to deliver i.e. the production plan and the subordinate resource plan. System boundaries defines which care units to include when focusing on the care delivery system's performance as a whole and should be more important than the performance and productivity of each individual care unit. A number of direct suggestions for care chain improvement can also be found in the concluding remarks for example that objectives linked to economic influx or penalty narrow the system and that lead time data on an aggregated level is needed to cover episodes of care. The theoretical contribution of the dissertation is to the field of logistics management through the methodological development of using these theories in a new context. The managerial contribution is to healthcare managers through providing opportunities to improve care chains primarily by means of a greater understanding of care delivery systems.
