Berlin Metropolis, 1918-1933 Leonhard Helten, 2015 Between 1871 and 1919 the population of Berlin quadrupled and the city became the political center of Germany as well as the turbulent crossroads of the modern age This was reflected in the work of artists directors writers and critics of the time As an imperial capital Berlin was the site of violent political revolution and radical aesthetic innovation After the German defeat in World War I artists employed collage to challenge traditional concepts of art Berlin Dadaists reflected upon the horrors of war and the terrors of revolution and civil war Between 1924 and 1929 jazz posters magazines advertisements and cinema played a central role in the development of Berlin's urban experience as the spirit of modernity took hold The concept of the Neue Frau the modern emancipated woman helped move the city in a new direction Finally Berlin became a stage for political confrontation between the left and the right and was deeply affected by the economic crisis and mass unemployment at the end of the 1920s This book explores in numerous essays and illustrations the artistic cultural and social upheavals in Berlin between 1918 and 1933 and places them in a broader historical framework

Vibrant Metropolis, Idyllic Nature Ernst Ludwig Kirchner, Kunsthau Zürich, 2017 Ernst Ludwig Kirchner's move from Dresden to Berlin in 1911 marked a turning point in his art Under the influence of the most modern metropolis in Europe during the years between 1912 and 1915 the artist created works whose exaggerated and condensed style could be regarded as a true metaphor for the attitude to life during the early years of the twentieth century During this time of rapid change the capital of the German Empire promised progress and countless opportunities but also danger and profound existential fear The city was not only the centre of industry which continued to grow unchecked but also of increasing motorised traffic and with three million inhabitants it was the biggest city of tenement blocks in Europe But Berlin was also the metropolis of the arts of hedonism prostitution and accordingly of a sexuality that could be lived to the full as never before Berlin vibrated with challenging energy and intellectual challenges In this melting pot of opportunities and risks Kirchner created pictures of breathless existential directness which he launched unerringly at the conventions of the Wilhelminian age The main area of focus of the publication will lie on this dialectic and the resulting tension It will reproduce Kirchner's greatest masterpieces and in order to demonstrate the profound changes in his style a representative selection of his early works from Dresden will also be shown alongside the paintings drawings and prints from the time in Berlin Nationalgalerie Berlin Nationalgalerie, 2014 Jannis Kounellis in the Neue Nationalgalerie Jannis Kounellis, Angela Schneider, Anke Daemgen, Melanie Wilken, 2008 Born in Piraeus in 1936 but living in Rome since the mid fifties Jannis Kounellis is considered one of the pioneers of Arte Povera a movement which seeks to construct installations using cheap and primarily unartistic materials such as sacks coal coffee and gas These unusual materials help the artist to create pictures which convey a sense of forgotten forces of an archaic world This publication accompanies the latest work of the Greco Italian artist who has assembled his installation in the form of a labyrinth in the upper hall of the Neue Nationalgalerie in Berlin In the open plan seemingly endless hall Kounellis has used sheets of metal to erect an apparently impenetrable labyrinth In the various rooms resulting from this maze's existence we discover and explore works from the different stages of the artist's creative development it is as though we are on a journey through his life
