Animated Animals:

The Animated Bestiary Paul Wells, 2008-11-28 Cartoonists and animators have given animals human characteristics for so long that audiences are now accustomed to seeing Bugs Bunny singing opera and Mickey Mouse walking his dog Pluto. The Animated Bestiary critically evaluates the depiction of animals in cartoons and animation more generally. Paul Wells argues that artists use animals to engage with issues that would be more difficult to address directly because of political, religious, or social taboos. Consequently and principally through anthropomorphism, animation uses animals to play out a performance of gender, sex, and sexuality, racial and national traits, and shifting identity, often challenging how we think about ourselves. Wells draws on a wide range of examples from the original King Kong to Nick Park's Chicken Run to Disney cartoons such as Tarzan, The Jungle Book, and Brother Bear to reflect on people by looking at the ways in which they respond to animals in cartoons and films.

Artificial Animals for Computer Animation Xiaoyuan Tu, 2003-06-26 After nearly half a century of research, the Holy Grail of the field of artificial intelligence (AI) remains a comprehensive computational model capable of emulating the marvelous abilities of animals, including locomotion, perception, behavior, manipulation, learning, and cognition. The comprehensive modeling of higher animals, humans, and other primates remains elusive. However, the research documented in this monograph achieves nothing less than a functional computer model of certain species of lower animals that are by no means trivial in their complexity. Reported herein is the 1996 ACM Doctoral Dissertation Award winning work of Xiaoyuan Tu, which she carried out in the Department of Computer Science at the University of Toronto. Tu presents artificial animals, a remarkable computational model of familiar marine animals in their natural habitat. Originally conceived in the context of computer graphics, Tu's is to date the only PhD dissertation from this major subfield of computer science and the only thesis from a Canadian university to win the coveted ACM award.

Animals and Agency Sarah E. McFarland, Ryan Hediger, 2009 While many scholars who write about animals deal with animal agency in some way, this volume is the first to position the question of nonhuman agency as the primary focus of inquiry. Section I presents studies of actual animals demonstrating agency. Section II moves agency into new terrain while considering key representations of animal agency in literature. Section III analyzes animals as mediators and as conveyances of human to human communication, and Section IV investigates the agency of beings who defy conventional species categories. The Envoi demonstrates how the microscopic polyp is interwoven into notions of agency and mythical superagency. This volume's interdisciplinary explorations press hard on issues of agency to open up space for more questions about how we can understand relationships between the human and the nonhuman.
