Annotated Landscapes Joel Feldman, 2004 Publikacja towarzysząca wystawie w Castellani Art Museum at Niagara University New York 28 lutego 2005 Landscape Analysis Per Stahlschmidt, Simon Swaffield, Jorgen Primdahl, Vibeke Nellemann, 2017-02-24 A key aspect of town planning landscape planning and landscape architecture is to identify and then use the distinctive features and characteristics of space place and landscape to achieve environmental quality Landscape Analysis provides an introduction to the field both in theory and in practice A wide range of methods and techniques for landscape analysis is illustrated by urban and rural examples from many countries Analysing landscapes within a planning context requires both skill and insights Drawing upon numerous concrete examples together with an examination of some theoretical concepts this book guides the reader through a wide range of different approaches and techniques of landscape analysis that may be applied at different scales from elementary site analysis to historical and regional studies This is an essential book for students and graduate practitioners working in landscape architecture planning and architecture

Landscape Analysis and Visualisation Christopher Pettit, William Cartwright, Ian Bishop, Kim Lowell, David Pullar, David Duncan, 2008-06-03 Michael Batty Centre for Advanced Spatial Analysis University College London Landscapes like cities cut across disciplines and professions This makes it especially difficult to provide an overall sense of how landscapes should be studied and researched Ecology aesthetics economy and sociology combine with physiognomy and deep physical structure to confuse our understanding and the way we should react to the problems and potentials of landscapes Nowhere are these dilemmas and paradoxes so clearly highlighted as in Australia where landscapes dominate and their relationship to cities is so fragile yet so important to the sustainability of an entire nation if not planet This book presents a unique collection and synthesis of many of these perspectives perhaps it could only be produced in a land used in the tiniest of pockets and yet so daunting with respect to the way non populated landscapes dwarf its cities Many travel to Australia to its cities and never see the landscapes but it is these that give the country its power and imagery It is the landscapes that so impress on us the need to consider how our intervention through activities ranging from resource exploitation and settled agriculture to climate change poses one of the greatest crises facing the modern world In this sense Australia and its landscape provide a mirror through which we can glimpse the extent to which our intervention in the world threatens its very existence

Computational Analysis of the Mammalian Cis-regulatory Landscape Cory Yuen Fu McLean, 2011 Improvements in DNA sequencing technologies have made it possible to determine the genetic makeup of many organisms Computational analyses of the massive amounts of sequence data available have produced many insights into evolutionary and developmental biology For example comparison of the full genome sequences of human and mouse discovered that the majority of functional sequence in the human genome does not code for protein Much of this functional non coding sequence appears to act in a regulatory role dictating the precise tissues and developmental time points in which each protein should be produced This dissertation describes three major contributions to the computational analysis of regulatory elements First I describe the Genomic Regions Enrichment of Annotations Tool GREAT a novel statistical method and associated web based tool developed to infer the biological functions of regulatory elements based on the functions of their putative target genes I demonstrate its marked improvement over current methods at interpreting functional enrichment signals for a variety of regulatory element types Next I discuss a computational methodology developed to identify medium to large scale 10 100 000 nucleotide genomic deletions from whole genome sequences of multiple mammals Using this methodology I quantify the dispensability of highly conserved non coding elements CNEs as their likelihood to be deleted in a subset of species Despite their genomic prevalence and apparent redundancy in function CNEs are very rarely lost in extant species Even more surprisingly there is a very weak relationship between dispensability and nucleotide conservation level Sequences under purifying selection at moderate levels of nucleotide conservation are lost at a rate similar to those at perfect sequence conservation Instead evolutionary resistance to loss is more strongly correlated with depth of sequence homology as ancient enhancers are more resistant to deletion than ones that arose more recently in evolution Finally I present the discovery and analysis of human specific genomic deletions By comparing the genome sequences of five species including human and our nearest ape relative the chimpanzee I identified 583 regions present in non human species that contain highly conserved sequence but are surprisingly deleted in humans Statistical analyses indicate that these deletions occur preferentially near steroid hormone receptor genes and brain expressed genes that are known to inhibit proliferation Experimental results provide particular examples that may have contributed to unique human traits the loss of an AR enhancer is correlated with the human loss of penile spines and sensory vibrissae and the loss of a GADD45G enhancer is correlated with the human expansion of the cerebral cortex Historic Landscape Directory, 1991 Multiscale Analysis of Landscape Data Sets from Northern Ghana Nathaniel Kwamina Howard, 2005 Catalog of Historic Preservation Publications, 1995 The Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties with Guidelines for the Treatment of Cultural Landscapes United States. Dwelling in Political Landscapes Anu Lounela, Eva Berglund, Timo Kallinen, 2019-05-22 People all over the globe are experiencing unprecedented and often hazardous situations as environments change at speeds never before experienced This edited collection proposes that anthropological perspectives on landscape have great potential to address the resulting conundrums The contributions build on broadly phenomenological structuralist and multi species approaches to environmental perception and experience but they also argue for incorporating political power into analysis alongside dwelling cosmology and everyday practice The book's 13 ethnographically rich chapters explore how the material and the conceptual are entangled in and as landscapes but it also looks at how these processes unfold at many scales in time and space involving different actors with different powers Thus it reaches towards new methodologies and new ways of using anthropology to engage with the sense of crisis concerning environment movements of people climate change and other planetary transformations Dwelling in political landscapes contemporary anthropological perspectives builds substantially upon anthropological work by Tim Ingold Anna Tsing and Philippe Descola and on related work beyond which emphasises the ongoing and open ended yet historically conditioned ways in which humans and nonhumans produce the environments they inhabit In such work landscapes are understood as the medium and outcome of meaningful life activities where humans like other animals dwell This means that landscapes are neither social cultural nor natural but socio natural Protesting against and moving on from the proverbial dualisms of modern Western and maybe capitalist thought is only the first step in renewing anthropology's methodology for the current epoch however The contributions ask how seemingly disconnected temporal representational economic and other systemic dynamics fold back on lived experience that are materialised in landscapes Foremost through studying how socially valued landscapes become irreversibly disturbed commodified or subjected to wilful markings or erasures the book explores a number of approaches to how landscapes are entangled in the ways people gather and organise themselves Mindful of troubling changes in Earth Systems all the authors argue from empirics They show that processes of landscape change are always both habitual and laden with choices That is landscape change is political Undoubtedly landscape politics is bound up not just in how nature has been imagined but in long histories of consumption Today an alarming quest for raw materials and energy continues to change both political and geological formations Meanwhile dominant socio political aspirations mean the exploitation of staggering volumes of cheap resources like fossil fuels in order to sustain economic processes that are as taken for granted as they are unsustainable Like anthropology generally this book attends to the contextual details buried in such planet scale pictures Building on traditional anthropological strengths many authors consider the details of how the past is brought into the present or erased from it in material flows and sensory awareness as well as in narratives that are explicitly linked to particular landscapes Colonial identity formation and the different ways that it links with how landscape is viewed and managed for instance for resource development for a global market whether in Southern Africa Israel Palestine the Canadian arctic or Indonesia is a particularly striking example of how to talk about landscape is also to talk about past present and future And as the idea that we inhabit the Anthropocene becomes commonplace the discipline can meaningfully discuss the current era as one of disavowed ruins as well as of poorly understood multispecies relations To think of landscape as historically produced across multiple scales does not mean ignoring its sensuous qualities let alone its role in cosmological systems On the contrary the analyses in the collection attend to the ways people s movements through the landscape produce it as a material and conceptual resource Taken together the book s ethnographic analyses take on board the unprecedented conditions under which people everywhere are having to make sense and forge relationships to the worlds they inhabit Since landscapes are not what they used to be neither can anthropology be

Landscape Architecture Louise A. Mazingo,Linda Jewell,2011-12-22 While many fields struggle to specify feminine contributions the work of women has always played a fundamental role in American landscape architecture Women claim responsibility for many landscape types now taken for granted including community gardens playgrounds and streetscapes This collection of essays by leaders in the discipline addresses the ways that gender has influenced the history design practice and perception of landscapes It highlights women s relation to landscape architecture presents the professional efforts of women in the landscape realm examines both the perception and experience of landscapes by women and speculates on ways to re imagine gender and the landscape Landscape and Utopia Jody Beck,2022-12-22 This book examines three landmark utopian visions central to 20th century landscape architectural planning and architectural theory The period between the 1890s and the 1940s was a fertile time for utopian thinking Significant geographic shifts of large populations radically altered relations between capital and labor rapid technological developments large investments in transportation and energy infrastructure and repetitive economic disruptions motivated many individuals to wholly reimagine society including the connections between social relations and the built environment Landscape and Utopia examines the role of landscapes in the political imaginations of the Garden City the Radiant City and Broadacre City Each project uses landscapes to propose a reconstruction of the relationships between land labor and capital but while the projects are well known the role played by landscapes has been largely left unexamined Similarly the radical anti capitalism that underpinned each project has similarly been for the most part left out of contemporary discussions This book sets these projects within a historical and philosophical context and opens a discussion on the role of landscapes in society today This book will be a must read for instructors students and researchers of the history and theory of landscape architecture planning and architecture as well as utopian studies cultural and social history and environmental theory Annotated Bibliography, the
