Awake, Emerging, and Connected Victoria Turner, 2024-07-31 Millennials and Gen Zers have been characterized as individualistic capitalist consumers as politically unengaged and spiritually selfish or only interested in identity politics This edited collection by bringing together younger generations of theologians activists campaigners artists and those working in politics academia the church economics or community work offers a new narrative of justice one that is globally aware and actively intersectional Bringing together powerful young voices with a wealth of contextually grounded experiences of faith and justice spreading over Mexico India Nagaland Germany Wales Ecuador South Africa Palestine Brazil Canada Indonesia Scotland England and the Pacific the chapters in this book imagine daring new possibilities Together the chapters reveal a generation who face a burning politically and religiously right leaning egotistical world and who know clearly that the legacies of Empire which continue white hegemony patriarchy heterosexuality normalized cisgender identities the class war colonial debts Western epistemology and ecological extraction must be overcome and replaced by a transnational solidarity of resistance and reimagination
Ecosystem Services from Agriculture and Agroforestry Bruno Rapidel, Fabrice DeClerck, Jean Francois Le Coq, John Beer, 2012-06-25 Agricultural systems are no longer evaluated solely on the basis of the food they provide but also on their capacity to limit impacts on the environment such as soil conservation water quality and biodiversity conservation as well as their contribution to mitigating and adapting to climate change In order to cope with these multiple service functions they must internalize the costs and benefits of their environmental impact Payments for ecosystem services are hoped to encourage and promote sustainable practices via financial incentives The authors show that while the principle is straightforward the practice is much more complicated Whereas scenic beauty and protection of water sources provide benefits to the local population carbon sequestration and biodiversity conservation can be considered international public goods rendering potential payment schemes more complex Few examples exist where national or international bodies have been able to set up viable mechanisms that compensate agricultural systems for the environmental services they provide However this book provides several examples of successful programs and aims to transfer them to other regions of the world The authors show that a product can be sold if it is clearly quantified there exists a means to determine the service s values and there is a willing buyer The first two sections of the book present methodological issues related to the quantification and marketing of ecosystem services from agriculture including agroforestry The third and final section presents case studies of practical payments for ecosystem services and experiences in Central and South America and draws some lessons learnt for effective and sustainable development of ecosystem services compensation mechanisms

The Lactic Acid

Bacteria:Volume 1 B.J.B. Wood,2012-12-06 Historical Background lowe my interest in the lactic acid bacteria LAB to the late Dr Cyril Rainbow who introduced me to their fascinating world when he offered me a place with him to work for a PhD on the carbohydrate metabolism of some lactic rods isolated from English beer breweries by himself and others notably Dr Dora Kulka He was particularly interested in their preference for maltose over glucose as a source of carbohydrate for growth expressed in most cases as a more rapid growth on the disaccharide but one isolate would grow only on maltose Eventually we showed that maltose was being utilised by direct fermentation as the older texts called it specifically by the phosphorolysis which had first been demonstrated for maltose by Doudoroff and his associates in their work on maltose metabolism by a strain of Neisseria meningitidis I began work on food fermentations when I came to Strathclyde University and I soon found myself involved again with the bacteria which I had not touched since completing my doctoral thesis In 1973 IG Carr C V Cutting and G c Whiting organised the 4th Long Ashton Symposium Lactic Acid Bacteria in Beverages and Food and from my participation in that excellent conference arose a friendship with Geoff Carr The growing importance of these bacteria was subsequently confirmed by the holding a decade later of the first of the Wageningen Conferences on the LAB

Mechanisms of Resistance to Plant Diseases R.S. Fraser,2012-12-06 Plant resistance to pathogens is one of the most important strategies of disease control Knowledge of resistance mechanisms and of how to exploit them has made a significant contribution to agricultural productivity However the continuous evolution of new variants of pathogen and additional control problems posed by new crops and agricultural methods creates a need for a corresponding increase in our understanding of resistance and ability to utilize it The study of resistance mechanisms also has attractions from a purely academic point of view First there is the breadth of the problem which can be approached at the genetical molecular cellular whole plant or population levels Often there is the possibility of productive exchange of ideas between different disciplines Then there is the fact that despite recent advances many of the mechanisms involved have still to be fully elucidated Finally and compared with workers in other areas of biology the student of resistance is twice blessed in having as his subject the interaction of two or more organisms with the intriguing problems of recognition specificity and co evolution which this raises Diseases and Plant Population Biology J.
