Environmental Fiscal Reform and Unemployment Carlo Carraro, D. Siniscalco, 2013-03-14 The European Union faces several interlinked challenges how to protect the environment and favour sustainability how to reduce unemployment and foster competitiveness in a context of growing globalization how to reduce regional disparities among and within member countries The recent policy debate has clarified that the above objectives are not a trade off if jointly tackled In particular win win policy options are available to the European Union by an appropriate integration of regulation macro policy social policy fiscal policy and environmental policy Evidence shows that optimising on each single policy will not meet the needs of the European Union On the contrary an integrated approach will make it possible to reach the various objectives as stated in the Treaty on European Union in the 5th Environmental Action Programme in the White Paper on Growth Competitiveness and Employment This integrated approach would implement a genuine sustainable development policy Money Demand in Europe Helmut Lütkepohl, Jürgen Wolters, 2013-04-17 In 1999 a number of member states of the European Union will adopt a common currency This change in the monetary system requires that a European Central Bank is set up and a common monetary policy is pursued There is general agreement among those countries which are likely to join the common currency that price level stability has to be the ultimate objective of monetary policy It is an open issue however what kind of policy is best suited for that purpose The alternative strategies under discussion are a direct inflation targeting an intermediate monetary targeting or a mixture of both For these policy strategies a stable money demand relation is of central importance Therefore a workshop on Money Demand in Europe was organized at the Humboldt University in Berlin on October 10 11 1997 This research conference brought together academic and central bank economists and econometricians predominantly from Europe to discuss issues on specification estimation and in particular stability of money demand relations both in a single equation and in a systems framework In this volume revised versions of the papers presented and discussed at the workshop are collected. The volume thereby gives an overview of money demand analysis in Europe on the eve of the introduction of the Euro in some European countries. It contributes to the discussion on a suitable monetary policy for the new European Central Bank. Comparative Advantage in International Trade Mirela Keuschnigg, 2012-12-06

Traditional trade theory explains trade only by differences between countries, notably differences in their relative endowments of factors of production. It suggests an inverse relationship between the similarity of countries and the volume of trade between them. The Heckscher-Ohlin-HO factor proportions theory derives the determinants of comparative advantage in a world of two different goods, two factors, two countries. It predicts that each country will export that good which uses the country's abundant factor relatively most intensively. The literature on trade offers an impressive number of studies based on the HO theory. The main methodological problems encountered in the literature are first the appropriate formulation of the HO theorem in a multi-factor, multi-good and multi-country framework, second proper tests of the HO theory and proper links of the theory to empirical analysis. The relevance of the HO theory began to be questioned when important facts of modern international trade proved to be inconsistent with its theoretical framework. Leontief (1953) tested the factor proportions theory using the US data for 1947 and found that the US had more labor-intensive exports than imports, which is opposed to both perceptions and estimations of factor endowments. The Leontief paradox created doubt as to whether or not actual trade patterns and factor endowments are related as predicted by theory and caused many controversial discussions with regard to the proper empirical implementation of the factor proportions theory. International Economic Integration: Theory and measurement Miroslav Jovanovic, 1998 Handbook of Development Economics Hollis Chenery, Hollis Burnley

This collection of essays offers an extensive critical review of the major contributions of key figures in contemporary heterodox economics, including comprehensive bibliographies of their writings and lists of vital secondary material. Research Tools in Natural Resource and Environmental Economics Amitrajeet A. Batabyal, Peter Nijkamp, 2011. A collection of scholarly accounts and articles written by recognized experts in environmental economics. This book is the first of its kind and as a valuable reference and textual source for graduate students and active researchers. With contributions by prominent international researchers like Robert Ayres, Charles Perrings and Anastasios Xepapadeas, the book will be useful for researchers who wish to learn new techniques or change their area of research emphasis within natural resource and environmental economics or those who wish to familiarize themselves with these tools. Handbook of Research on Economic, Financial, and Industrial Impacts on Infrastructure Development Das, Ramesh Chandra, 2017-04-17. Econometrics of Short and Unreliable Time Series Thomas Url,Andreas Wörgötter,2012-12-06 The disappearance of central planned economies left politicians researchers consultants and academics with an interest in economies in transition in vagueness about the actual state of the economy and its short and medium term prospects This volume provides the reader with information on how to deal with the statistical shortcomings of economies in transition Most economic variables published for these countries tend to encompass a short period of time or they possess a low measurement quality Moreover most of the series are subject to structural breaks due to the change in the patterns of economic reactions over time The contributions in this volume show various ways to solve or at least to lessen the before mentioned problems

Macroeconomic Policy Games Arno

Kugler, 2012-12-06 This collection of papers represents the state of the art in the application of recent econometric methods to the analysis of financial markets From a methodological point of view the main emphasis is on cointegration analysis and ARCH modelling In cointegration analysis the links between long run components of time series are studied The methods used can be applied to the determination of equilibrium relationships between the variables whereas ARCH models are concerned with the measurement and analysis of changing variances in time series These econometric models have been the most significant innovations for the empirical analysis of financial time series in recent years Other econometric methods and models applied in the papers include factor analysis vector autoregressions and Markov switching models The papers cover a wide range of issues and theories in financial and international economics the term structure of interest rates exchange rate determination target zone dynamics stock market efficiency and option pricing Panel Data Analysis Baldev Raj, Badi H.

Baltagi, 2012-12-06 A number of advances have taken place in panel data analysis during the past three decades and it continues to be one of the most active areas of research This volume contains 13 significant contributions focusing on modelling strategies data issues theoretical analysis and applications Applied econometrics papers on the economics of labor health telecommunications finance and macroeconomics are provided as well as a survey of recent theoretical developments in panel data analysis Contributors include both well known scholars and younger researchers from Australia Canada Europe and the United States of America Trade Liberalisation and Poverty in South Asia Prema-chandra

Athukorala, Jayatileke S. Bandara, Saman Kelegama, 2012-05-23 The link between trade liberalisation and poverty has arguably been one of the most debated topics in development policy debate Existing studies on the subject have primarily used multi country cross sectional data and there is a growing concern about the limitations of this approach in providing a sound empirical basis for informing the policy debate These limitations point to the need for undertaking in depth analyses within individual countries over time In order to examine the connection between trade liberalisation and poverty this book provides case studies of trade policy reforms and poverty reduction outcomes of seven countries in South Asia Bangladesh

Bhutan India Maldives Nepal Pakistan and Sri Lanka The South Asia region allows for an excellent comparative study given the widespread emphasis on liberalisation reforms in the region over the past two decades as well as highlighting significant inter country differences in terms of the timing and comprehensiveness of reforms and the heavy concentration of world poverty in the region This book is a useful contribution to studies on South Asia as well as International Trade and Development Economics Handbook of Agricultural Economics Bruce L. Gardner, Gordon C. Rausser, 2002-12-17

Annotation The subject matter of agricultural economics has both broadened and deepened in recent years and the chapters of this Handbook present the most exciting and innovative work being done today Following Volume 1 Volume 2 consists of three parts Agriculture Natural Resources and the Environment Agriculture in the Macroeconomy and Agriculture and Food Policy Although agricultural economists have always paid attention to these topics research devoted to them has increased substantially in scope as well as depth in recent years
