Psychology for Teachers Daniel Wolford la Rue,2015-06-15 Excerpt from Psychology for Teachers We appear to have applied psychology to the teaching of every subject except psychology itself In this direction there is large room for development One of the chief purposes of this book is to present psychology psychologically Usually all the student s work before beginning this subject has been objective To plunge him headlong into subjective phenomena is too much like the method of teaching swimming by throwing the learner overboard From the known to the unknown the old rule holds The method here adopted consists in 1 passing from the familiar picture of man in his common environment to a study with genetic sidelights of Body Brain and Mind 2 showing the relation of adjustment between The Mental and the Environmental and 3 explaining in the study of Mind Nervous System and Behavior how the neuro mental governing and steering system accomplishes its complex task of adjustment In this way we complete the sensori motor circle inward from body to mind outward from mind to behavior The frequently found plan of isolating the discussion of the nervous system in a separate chapter has not been followed Such knowledge is better assimilated and applied if presented in direct connection with the most closely related mental facts About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Developmental and Educational Psychology for Teachers Dennis McInerney,David Putwain,2016-09-13 Developmental and Educational Psychology for Teachers brings together a range of evidence drawn from psychology to answer a number of critical educational questions from basic questions of readiness for example when is a child ready for school through to more complex matters such as how does a teacher understand and promote good peer relationships in their classroom The answers to these and other questions discussed draw here on the interplay between a teachers craft expertise and their knowledge of evidence and theory from developmental and educational psychology Presenting a range of classic theories and contemporary research to help readers understand what the key issues are for teachers and other professionals this book aides informed educational decisions in situations such as inclusion ability grouping sex differences developing creativity home and peer influences on learning and developing effective learners Teachers in early years primary and secondary settings are routinely faced with questions regarding the development of children This not only relates to the planning and delivery of lessons but also to the mental and physical wellbeing of the children and adolescents that they teach The pedagogical features of this book are accessible and clearly presented including focus questions that direct the reader s attention to key issues activity posts that point the reader to meaningful and relevant research and show the practical applications of material covered and extension material that gives depth to many of the topics covered This book aims to inform the practice of both in service and trainee teachers addressing issues that are relevant to their practice With no other detailed and accessible text presenting this evidence and theory specifically for an audience of practicing and trainee teachers currently on the market this book will be of essential reading to practicing and trainee teachers for early years primary and secondary education and other related educational contexts such as educational psychologists counsellors paediatric and child doctors and nurses
