Aquatic Ecosystems An Operational Research Approach:

Aquatic Ecosystems Jan E. Beyer, 1981 An Ecological Framework for Marine Fishery Investigations J. F. Caddy, Gary D. Sharp, 1986-01-01 The text is intended as supplementary reading for fisheries workers especially in developing countries who do not always have ready access to current literature on applied marine ecology An attempt is made to develop a wide range of concepts in a form that will hopefully encourage their incorporation into a practical decision making context The food web and associated trophic interactions form the principal theme in an approach that gives equal emphasis to qualitative as well as the less easily measured quantitative considerations An attempt is made to illustrate the consequences of the aggregated nature of much of marine production as well as the subsequent dispersal of production in space and time and how these processes affect the potential for economic harvest of commercial components of the ecosystem Separate sections touch on environmental influences on production relevant spatial and temporal scales for ecosystem analysis life history strategies diversity and stability the concepts of the ecological niche the community and the assemblage and outline some first steps towards quantifying production in marine ecosystems Different approaches to representing trophic and other interactions are discussed with examples from the literature Reference is made to several ecological subsystems in order to illustrate the main concepts presented These include the mangrove ecosystem the arcto boreal macrophyte community a mediterranean demersal fish assemblage and the oceanic ecosystem associated with high seas tuna stocks In practical terms it is concluded that the first and simplest approach to multispecies resource management is not necessarily the manipulation of individual food web components but the identification mapping and conservation of critical habitats especially centres of local production and their associated ecological dissipation structures Handbook of Scaling Methods in Aquatic Ecology Laurent Seuront, Peter G. Strutton, 2003-09-25 The evolution of observational instruments simulation techniques and computing power has given aquatic scientists a new understanding of biological and physical processes that span temporal and spatial scales This has created a need for a single volume that addresses concepts of scale in a manner that builds bridges between experimentalists and Flows of Energy and Materials in Marine Ecosystems M. J. R. Fasham, 2013-03-09 The impetus for the conference held at Bombannes France in May 1982 arose out of a Scientific Committee on Oceanic Research SCOR Working Group on Mathematical Models in Biological Oceanography This group was chaired by K H Mann and held two meetings in 1977 and 1979 At both meetings it was felt that although reductionist modelling of marine ecosystems had achieved some successes the future progress lay in the development of holistic ecosystem models The members of the group K H Mann T Platt J M Colebrook D F Smith M J R Fasham J Field G Radach R E Ulanowicz and F Wulff produced a critical review of reductionist and holistic models which was published by the Unesco Press Platt Mann and Ulanowicz 1981 One of the conclusions of this review was that whether holistic or reductionist models are preferred it is critically important to increase the scientific effort in the measurement of physiological rates for the computation of ecological fluxes The Working Group therefore recommended that an international meeting should be organized which would attempt to bring together theoretical ecologists and biological oceanographers to assess the present and future capability for measuring ecological fluxes and incorporating these data into models An approach was made to the Marine Sciences Panel of the NATO Science Committee who expressed an interest in funding such a meeting They awarded a planning grant and a planning group was formed consisting of M J R Fasham M V Angel T Platt R E Integrated Environmental Management John Cairns, Jr., Todd V. Crawford, 1990-12-19 Integrated Environmental Management shows how to use integrated environmental management so that demands upon an ecosystem do not exceed its capacity to meet them and the biological ecological integrity is preserved Varieties of disciplines professions institutions and federal and state agencies are shown how to integrate their individual objectives in utilizing a natural resource so the beneficial uses of others are not impaired Valuable for the following groups Fundamentals of Ecological Modelling S.E. Jorgensen, 2011-01-10

Fundamentals of Ecological Modelling Applications in Environmental Management and Research Fourth Edition provides a comprehensive discussion of the fundamental principles of ecological modeling The first two editions of this book published in 1986 and 1994 focused on the roots of the discipline the four main model types that dominated the field 30 40 years ago 1 dynamic biogeochemical models 2 population dynamic models 3 ecotoxicological models and 4 steady state biogeochemical and energy models The third edition focused on the mathematical formulations of ecological processes that are included in ecological models This fourth edition uses the four model types previously listed as the foundation and expands the latest model developments in spatial models structural dynamic models and individual based models As these seven types of models are very different and require different considerations in the model development phase a separate chapter is devoted to the development of each of the model types Throughout the text the examples given from the literature emphasize the application of models for environmental management and research Presents the most commonly used model types with a step by step outline of the modeling procedure used for each Shows readers through an illustrated example of how to use each model in research and management settings New edition is revised to include only essential theory with a focus on applications Includes case studies illustrations and exercises case study of an ecological problem with full illustration on how to solve the problem Strategic Management of Marine Ecosystems Eugene Levner, Igor Linkov, Jean-Marie

Proth, 2006-05-06 The demand for advanced management methods and tools for marine ecosystems is increasing worldwide Today many marine ecosystems are significantly affected by disastrous pollution from industrial agricultural municipal transportational and other anthropogenic sources The issues of environmental integrity are especially acute in the Mediterranean and Red Sea basins the cradle of modern civilization The drying of the Dead Sea is one of the most vivid examples of environmental disintegration with severe negative consequences on the ecology industry and wildlife in the area Strategic management and coordination of international remedial and restoration efforts is required to improve environmental conditions of marine ecosystems in the Middle East as well as in other areas The NATO Advanced Study Institute ASI held in Nice in October 2003 was designed to 1 provide a discussion forum for the latest developments in the field of environmentally conscious strategic management of marine environments and 2 integrate expertise of ecologists biologists economists and managers from European American Canadian Russian and Israeli organizations in developing a framework for strategic management of marine ecosystems The ASI addressed the following issues Key environmental management problems in exploited marine ecosystems Measuring and monitoring of municipal industrial and agricultural effluents Global contamination of seawaters and required remedial efforts Supply Chain Management approach for strategic coastal zones management and planning Development of environmentally friendly technologies for coastal zone development Modeling for sustainable aquaculture and Social political and economic challenges in marine ecosystem management

Levin,Mark A. Harwell,John R. Kelly,Kenneth D. Kimball,2012-12-06 Ecotoxicology is the science that seeks to predict the impacts of chemicals upon ecosystems This involves describing and predicting ecological changes ensuing from a variety of human activities that involve release of xenobiotic and other chemicals to the environment A fundamental principle of ecotoxicology is embodied in the notion of change Ecosystems themselves are constantly changing due to natural processes and it is a challenge to distinguish the effects of anthropogenic activities against this background of fluctuations in the natural world With the frustratingly large diverse and ever emerging sphere of environmental problems that ecotoxicology must address the approaches to individual problems also must vary In part as a consequence there is no established protocol for application of the science to environmental problem solving The conceptual and methodological bases for ecotoxicology are however in their infancy and thus still growing with new experiences In deed the only robust generalization for research on different ecosystems and different chemical stresses seems to be a recognition of the necessity of an ecosystem perspective as focus for assessment This ecosystem basis for ecotoxicology was the major theme of a previous publication by the Ecosystems Research Center at Cornell University a special issue of Environmental Management Levin et al 1984 With that effort we also recognized an additional necessity there should be a continued development of methods and expanded recognition of issues for ecotoxicology and for the associated endeavor of environmental management Civil Works Annual Research & Development Summary ,1979 Aquatic Plant Control Program ,1976 Annotated List of Publications of the Pacific Northwest Forest and Range Experiment Station Pacific Northwest Forest and Range Experiment Station
