Estonian Journal of Archaeology ,2004 South American Contributions to World Archaeology Mariano Bonomo,Sonia Archila,2021-11-08 This book focuses on South American archaeology and its contributions to the broader global archaeological discussion in theory methods and new interpretations of the archaeological record These include discussions on human peopling and colonization of the continent domestication of plants and emergence of complex societies This volume covers a wide variety of sub disciplines in archaeology including archaeobotany zooarchaeology molecular archaeology bioarchaeology geoarchaeology The chapters span from the pre Columbian to contemporaneous indigenous societies for all the main geographical and ecological zones of South America The book discusses how particular cases of South American archaeology have contributed to the understanding of a global and basic issue human relations with their environments and landscapes during the past The authors focus on the latest results produced by multidisciplinary studies carried out at archaeological sites in several areas of South America ranging from studies of early hunter gatherers through the historic period This work would be of interest to researchers in archaeology and Latin American studies Religion, Material Culture and Archaeology Julian Droogan, 2012-12-27 Charts a new understanding of the materiality of religion by drawing on the field of archaeological theory and method A Companion to Archaeology John Bintliff, 2008-04-15 A Companion to Archaeology features essays from 27 of the world's leading authorities on different types of archaeology that aim to define the field and describe what it means to be an archaeologist Shows that contemporary archaeology is an astonishingly broad activity with many contrasting specializations and ways of approaching the material record of past societies Includes essays by experts in reading the past through art linguistics or the built environment and by professionals who present the past through heritage management and museums Introduces the reader to a range of archaeologists those who devote themselves to the philosophy of archaeology those who see archaeology as politics or anthropology and those who contend that the essence of the discipline is a hard science The Oxford Handbook of African Archaeology Peter Mitchell, Paul Lane, 2013-07-04 This Handbook provides a comprehensive synthesis of African archaeology covering the entirety of the continent's past from the beginnings of human evolution to the archaeological legacy of European colonialism It includes a mixture of key methodological and theoretical issues and debates and situates the subject's contemporary practice Shared Landscapes Rodney Harrison, 2004 The heritage of the pastoral industry stands as an integral symbol of identity for rural communities both black and white in New South Wales Modern changes in pastoral land management infrastructure and technology combined with broader land use changes and increased community interest in the conservation and rehabilitation of former grazing lands has meant that many former pastoral properties have been abandoned or acquired for other uses Tracking the history of these land use changes Shared Landscapes presents new ways of understanding historic heritage in settler societies through cross disciplinary case studies that examine the heritage of the pastoral industry in two national parks Assessing its current state of interpretation and management in New South Wales Rodney Harrison shows that pastoral heritage is more than just woolsheds and homesteads the showpieces of white male settler colonial economies Pastoral heritage is the product of the mutual histories of Aboriginal and settler Australians It is a form of heritage that is both in and a part of the landscape His archaeological approach to the heritage of the pastoral industry involves both recording sites and revealing attachments to community heritage demonstrating that writing shared histories and celebrating shared heritage has the creative power to reconcile Aboriginal and settler Australians in powerful and positive ways      Archaeology in Environment and Technology David Frankel, Susan Lawrence, Jennifer Webb, 2013-05-02

Environments landscapes and ecological systems are often seen as fundamental by archaeologists but how they relate to society is understood in very different ways The chapters in this book take environment culture and technology together All have been the focus of much attention often one or other has been seen as the starting point for analysis but this volume argues that it is the study of the inter relationships between these three factors that offers a way forward The contributions to this book pick up different strands within the tangled web of intersections between environment technology and society providing a series of case studies which explore facets of this common theme in different settings and circumstances and from different perspectives As well as addressing themes of theoretical and methodological interest these case studies draw on primary research dealing with time periods from the late Pleistocene glacial maximum to the very recent past and involve societies of very different types Running through all the contributions however is a concern with the archaeological record and the ways in which scales of observation and availability of evidence affect the development of questions and explanations The diversity of the chapters in this volume demonstrates the inherent weakness in any attempt to prioritise environment technology or society These three factors are all embedded in any human activity as change in one will result in change in the others social and technical changes alter relations with the environment and indeed the environment itself and as environmental change drives changes in society and technology As this book shows it is possible to consider the relationship between the three factors from different perspectives but any attempt to consider one or even two in isolation will mean that valuable insights will be missed      Far from Equilibrium: An archaeology of energy, life and humanity Michael J. Boyd, Roger C. P. Doonan, 2021-03-03

Archaeology is in crisis Spatial turns material turns and the ontological turn have directed the discipline away from its hard won battle to find humanity in the past Meanwhile popularised science camouflaged as archaeology produces shock headlines built on ancient DNA that reduce humanity's most intriguing historical problems to two dimensional caricatures Today archaeology finds itself less able than ever to proclaim its relevance to the modern world This volume foregrounds the relevance of the scholarship of John Barrett to this crisis Twenty four writers representing three generations of archaeologists scrutinise the current turmoil in the discipline and highlight the resolutions that may be found through Barrett's analytical framework Topics include archaeology and the senses the continuing problem of the archaeological record practice discourse and agency reorienting archaeological field practice the question of different expressions of human diversity and material ecologies Understanding archaeology as both a universal and highly specific discipline case studies range from the Aegean to Orkney and encompass Anatolia Korea Romania United Kingdom and the very nature of the Universe itself This critical examination of John Barrett's contribution to archaeology is simultaneously a response to his urgent call to arms to reorient archaeology in the service of humanity      Remote Sensing in Archaeology James R. Wiseman, Farouk El-Baz, 2007-06-04

Over the last few decades a revolution took place in our ability to observe and explore our home planet using spaceborne and airborne remote sensing instruments This revolution resulted from the new capability of observing on a large regional and global scale surface patterns and features and from using multispectral instruments to observe surface signatures not visible to the human eye and to penetrate below the surface cover using microwave radiation Over the last decade this new technology is being brought to bear in the field of archaeology As nicely and comprehensively described in this book remote sensing techniques are bringing new powerful tools to help archaeologists in their quest of discovery and exploration Even though this field is still in its infancy the different articles in this book give us a glimpse of the things to come and the great potential of remote sensing in archaeology The editors have brought an excellent sampling of authors that illustrate how remote sensing techniques are being used in the real world of archaeological exploration A number of chapters illustrate how spaceborne and airborne remote sensing instruments are being used to decipher surface morphological features in arid Egypt Arabia semi arid Greece Ethiopia Italy as well as tropical regions Costa Rica Guatemala Cambodia to help in archeological and paleontological exploration They illustrate the use of surface cover penetration with radars high resolution multispectral imaging on a regional basis as well as topographic signatures acquired with spaceborne and airborne sensors

Ideologies in Archaeology Reinhard Bernbeck, Randall H. McGuire, 2011-11-01 Archaeologists have often used the term ideology to vaguely refer to a realm of ideas Scholars from Marx to Zizek have developed a sharper concept arguing that ideology works by representing or misrepresenting power relations through concealment enhancement or transformation of real social relations between groups Ideologies in Archaeology examines the role of ideology in this latter sense as it pertains to both the practice and the content of archaeological studies While ideas like reflexive archaeology and multivocality have generated some recent interest this book is the first work to address in any detail the mutual relationship between ideologies of the past and present ideological conditions producing archaeological knowledge Contributors to this volume focus on elements of life in past societies that went without saying and that concealed different forms of power as obvious and unquestionable From the use of burial rites as political theater in Iron Age Germany to the intersection of economics and elite power in Mississippian mound building the contributors uncover complex manipulations of power that have often gone unrecognized They show that Occam's razor the tendency to favor simpler explanations is sometimes just an excuse to avoid dealing with the historical world in its full complexity Jean Paul Demoule's concluding chapter echoes this sentiment and moreover brings a continental European perspective to the preceding case studies In addition to situating this volume in a wider history of archaeological currents Demoule identifies the institutional and cultural factors that may account for the current direction in North American archaeology He also offers a defense of archaeology in an era of scientific relativism which leads him to reflect on the responsibilities of archaeologists Includes contributions by Susan M Alt Bettina Arnold Uzi Baram Reinhard Bernbeck Matthew David Cochran Jean Paul Demoule Kurt A Jordan Susan Kus Vicente Lull Christopher N Matthews Randall H

This fully updated sixth edition of a classic classroom text is essential reading for core courses in archaeology. Archaeology: An Introduction explains how the subject emerged from an amateur pursuit in the eighteenth century into a serious discipline and explores changing trends in interpretation in recent decades. The authors convey the excitement of archaeology while helping readers to evaluate new discoveries by explaining the methods and theories that lie behind them. In addition to drawing upon examples and case studies from many regions of the world and periods of the past, the book incorporates the authors' own fieldwork research and teaching. It continues to include key reference and further reading sections to help new readers find their way through the ever-expanding range of archaeological publications and online sources, as well as colour illustrations and boxed topic sections to increase comprehension. Serving as an accessible and lucid textbook and engaging students with contemporary issues, this book is designed to support students studying Archaeology at an introductory level.

New to the sixth edition: Inclusion of the latest survey and imaging techniques such as the use of drones and eXtended reality. Updated material on developments in dating, DNA analysis, isotopes and population movement, including consideration of the ethical considerations of these techniques. Coverage of new developments in archaeological theory such as the material turn, ontological turn and work on issues of equality, diversity and inclusion. A whole new chapter covering archaeology in the present, including new sections on heritage and public archaeology and an updated consideration of archaeology's relationship with the climate crisis. A revised glossary with over 200 new additions or updates.

Space and Spatial Analysis in Archaeology University of Calgary. Archaeological Association. Conference, Elizabeth C. Robertson, 2006. The archaeology of space and place is examined in this selection of papers from the 34th annual Chacmool Archaeological Conference.

Archaeologies of Placemaking Patricia E. Rubertone, 2016-07. The contributors ask critical questions about historic preservation and commemoration methods used by modern societies and their impact on the perception and identity of Native American peoples who are generally not consulted in the commemoration process.
