Manuel de Statistiques de la CNUCED ,2001 Numeric Data Services and Sources for the General Reference

Librarian Lynda Kellam,Katharin Peter,2011-05-26 The proliferation of online access to social science statistical and numeric data sources such as the U S Census Bureau's American Fact Finder has led to an increased interest in supporting these sources in academic libraries. Many large libraries have been able to devote staff to data services for years and recently smaller academic libraries have recognized the need to provide numeric data services and support. This guidebook serves as a primer to developing and supporting social science statistical and numerical data sources in the academic library. It provides strategies for the establishment of data services and offers short descriptions of the essential sources of free and commercial social science statistical and numeric data. Finally, it discusses the future of numeric data services including the integration of statistics and data into library instruction and the use of Web 2.0 tools to visualize data. Written for a general reference audience with little knowledge of data services and sources who would like to incorporate support into their general reference practice. Combines information on establishing data services with an introduction to available statistical and numeric data sources. Provides insight into the integration of statistics and data into library instruction and the social science research process.

Trends in Mortality and Differential Mortality Jacques Vallin, France Meslé, Tapani Valkonen, 2001. The average life expectancy for Europeans has increased from 45 years to 73 years during the last century. However, important differences in mortality risks are still present throughout Europe. For example, there is a higher mortality rate in Eastern Europe and in some eastern European countries life expectancy is actually decreasing. This study examines mortality trends in the Council of Europe member states over the last 50 years, including life expectancy, the reduction in infant mortality, trends in main groups of deaths, and the health crisis in eastern and central Europe. It also considers the links between life expectancy and socio-economic indicators for 11 European countries.

Manuel de Statistiques de la CNUCED. United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, 2000. Provides a comprehensive collection of statistical data relevant to the analysis of international trade, investment, and development for individual countries and for economic and trade groupings. It presents reference statistics considered of particular importance for describing in the context of globalization how developing countries have evolved. Online, the time series cover periods that are as long as figures obtainable permit going back to 1950 when data are available.
