and steel were the best defences for his body he would naturally insist that some sort of a guarantee should be given him of the efficacy of the goods supplied by his armourer This system of proving armour would be effected by using those weapons commonly in use and these in the early times were the sword the axe the lance the bow and the crossbow The latter seems to have been the more common forms of proof though as late as the seventeenth century we have evidence that armour was proved with the estramaon or sword blow from The Proof of Armour Not a history of defensive armor but rather a guide to the actual making of armor as well as the regulations that governed the artisans who made it this is a fascinating and practical handbook on the production selling and wearing metal traditional medieval body armor First published in 1912 this classic book by British historian and author CHARLES JOHN FFOULKES 1868 1947 curator of London s Royal Armouries draws on records of the time to detail the tools and appliances of the trade the decoration and cleaning of armor the use of leather and fabrics and much more to offer a complete reference for readers of period fiction and history wargamers costumers and anyone fascinated by the craft of the armorer This replica of the 1912 edition is complete with all of the original diagrams illustrations and photos

Critical Craft Clare M. Wilkinson-Weber,Alicia Ory DeNicola,2020-05-26 From Oaxacan wood carvings to dessert kitchens in provincial France Critical Craft presents thirteen ethnographies which examine what defines and makes craft in a wide variety of practices from around the world Challenging the conventional understanding of craft as a survival a revival or something that resists capitalism the book turns instead to the designers DIY enthusiasts traditional artisans and technical programmers who consider their labor to be craft in order to comprehend how they make sense of it The authors ethnographic studies focus on the individuals and communities who claim a practice as their own bypassing the question of craft survival to ask how and why activities termed craft are mobilized and reproduced Moving beyond regional studies of heritage artisanship the authors suggest that ideas of craft are by definition part of a larger cosmopolitan dialogue of power and identity By paying careful attention to these sometimes conflicting voices this collection shows that there is great flexibility in terms of which activities are labelled craft In fact there are many related ideas of craft and these shape distinct engagements with materials people and the economy Case studies from countries including Mexico Nigeria India Taiwan the Philippines and France draw together evidence based on linguistics microsociology and participant observation to explore the shifting terrain on which those engaged in craft are operating What emerges is a fascinating picture which shows how claims about craft are an integral part of contemporary global change
