Women's Health in Canada Marina Morrow, Olena Hankivsky, Colleen Varcoe, 2008-05-03 In recent years healthcare professionals have recognized the distinctly different healthcare needs and concerns of men and women Women's health in particular has come into its own in the last two decades In Canada however there has been little available in the way of a general text on women's health This volume works toward filling that gap by providing a resource for teaching and understanding women's health in this country To lay out the methodological and theoretical foundations for their study editors Olena Hankivsky Marina Morrow and Colleen Varcoe bring together an interdisciplinary group of scholars and practitioners from economics anthropology sociology nursing political studies women's studies and psychology Contributors draw on the rich history of the Canadian women's health movement providing analysis of that history and of the emergent theory policy and practice Aimed at undergraduate and graduate students as well as practitioners the collection adopts an intersectional approach looking closely at social factors such as gender race ethnicity class sexuality and gender identity and analysing how they relate both to each other and to women's health Connections between the social economic and cultural contexts of women's lives and their physical spiritual and mental well being are a primary focus Providing a much needed resource for teachers students and practitioners of women's health in Canada this comprehensive volume makes an important contribution to the literature

How to Rethink Mental Illness Bernard Guerin, 2017-03-16 The world of mental illness is typically framed around symptoms and cures where every client is given a label In this challenging new book Professor Bernard Guerin provides a fresh alternative to considering these issues based in interdisciplinary social sciences and discourse analysis rather than medical studies or cognitive metaphors A timely and articulate challenge to mainstream approaches Guerin asks the reader to observe the ecological contexts for behavior rather than diagnose symptoms to find new ways to understand and help those experiencing mental distress This book shows the reader how we attribute mental illness to someone's behavior why we call some forms of suffering mental but not others what Western diagnoses look like when you strip away the theory and categories why psychiatry and psychology appeared for the first time at the start of modernity the relationship between capitalism and modern ideas of mental illness why it seems that women the poor and people of Indigenous and non Western backgrounds have worse mental health how we can rethink the hearing of voices more ecologically how self identity has evolved historically how thinking arises from our social contexts rather than from inside our heads Offering solutions rather than theory to develop a new post internal psychology How to Rethink Mental Illness will be essential reading for every mental health professional as well as anyone who has either experienced a mental illness themselves or helped a friend or family

Violence Against Women in Asian Societies Linda Rae Bennett,Lenore Manderson,2013-09-13 Violence against women is a violation of women s human rights and a priority public health issue It is endemic worldwide While much has been written about it in industrialized societies there has been relatively little attention given to such violence in Asian societies This book addresses the structural and interpersonal violences to which women are subject both under conditions of conflict and disruption and where civil society is relatively ordered It explores sexual violence and coercion domestic violence and violence within the broader community and the state avoiding sensationalised accounts of so called cultural practices in favour of nuanced explorations of violences as experienced in Cambodia Thailand Burma Indonesia Malaysia the Philippines Bangladesh and India

Within the Confines Jennifer M. Kilty ,2014 Western feminists have long treated the rule of law as an essential ingredient of social justice however as the contributors to this collection remind us meaningful justice remains out of reach for many women and racialized minorities precisely because the law turns a blind eye to the inequities that structure their daily lives In fourteen chapters that open vital debates about the erosion of the welfare state and the media s complicity in concealing political injustice Within the Confines details the brutal ironies of a society that criminalizes the vulnerable while absolving the elite Distinctive in its focus on Canada the book traces the linkages among racial ethnic sexual and economic vulnerability and reveals the inadequacies of legislative approaches to socio historical problems such as drug trafficking homelessness infanticide and the legacies of settler colonial violence In accessible prose the authors dismantle the myths behind topics that are often sensationalized in the media pornography single motherhood sex work filicide gangs domestic abuse prison conditions HIV nondisclosure and present alternative arguments that expose the justice system s role in widening the gap between the rich and the poor What emerges is a poignant challenge to the neoliberal fable that women and minorities in Western democracies now enjoy full equality and an urgent call to action for those who seek to shift institutional norms in more equitable directions A valuable resource for a wide range of fields including criminology sociology social anthropology gender studies political science social work and legal history this multidisciplinary volume offers a fresh perspective on the disturbingly predictable judgments that criminalized women face in Canada

Silencing the Self Across Cultures Dana C. Jack,Alisha Ali,2010-04-28 This international volume offers new perspectives on social and psychological aspects of the complex dynamic of depression The twenty one contributors from thirteen countries Australia Canada Finland Germany Haiti India Israel Nepal Poland Portugal Puerto Rico Scotland and the United States represent contexts with very different histories political and economic structures and gender role disparities Authors rely on Silencing the Self theory which details the negative psychological effects when individuals silence themselves in close relationships and the importance of the social context in precipitating depression Specific patterns of thought about how to achieve closeness in relationships self silencing schema are known to predict depression This book breaks new ground by demonstrating that the linkage of depressive symptoms with self silencing occurs across a range of cultures We offer a new view of gender differences in depression situated in the formation and consequences of self silencing including differing motivational aims norms of masculinity and femininity and the broader social context of gender inequality The book offers evidence regarding why women s depression is more wide spread than men s and why the treatment of depression lies in understanding that a person s individual psychology is inextricably related to the social world and close relationships Authors examine not only gender differences in depression but also related aspects of mental and physical illness including treatments specific to women Several chapters describe the transformative possibilities of community driven movements for disadvantaged women that support healing through a recovery of voice and describe the need for systemic and structural changes to counter violations of human rights as a means of reducing women's risk of depression Bringing the work of these researchers together in one collection furthers international dialogue about critical social factors that affect the rising rates of depression around the globe

Black Dogs and Blue Words Kimberly Emmons, 2010 Analyzes the rhetoric surrounding depression Maintains that the techniques and language of depression marketing strategies vague words such as worry irritability and loss of interest target women and young girls and encourage self diagnosis and self medication Further depression narratives and other texts encode a series of gendered messages about health and illness As depression and other forms of mental illness move from the medical professional sphere into that of the consumer public the boundary at which distress becomes disease grows ever more encompassing the need for remediation and treatment increasingly warranted From publisher description
