H. H. Weiler, 2024-10-31 To many outside observers of the Israeli Palestinian conflict there would appear to be one eminently sensible solution in exchange for recognition and adequate security guarantees Israel should return the West Bank and the Gaza strip subject to minor boundary modifications to the Palestinians led by a moderate PLO The Palestinians would then exercise their right to self determination and establish an independent state with or without a link to Jordan And yet this solution has found favor neither with successive Israeli governments nor with the PLO First published in 1985 Israel and the Creation of a Palestinian State now with a new preface by the author analyses the reasons for the rejection of this solution by the protagonists It then sets up a vision of a possible solution which by taking account of the subjective fears and aspirations of the parties may be regarded as more feasible The author's vision draws inspiration from the experience of reconstructing a new transnational order in Europe after the ravages of the Second World War The underlying theme focuses on the limitations of the purely national context as a framework for resolving the current political problems of the Israeli Palestinian dilemma Creating the Palestinian State Jerome M. Segal, 1989

two seemingly contradictory functions state building and resistance and the dynamic tensions between the two raise key questions for political and policy analysis Are these functions mutually exclusive or complementary in the context of the ongoing peace negotiations and state building Can the Palestinian leadership transform the Palestinian national movement from a revolutionary organization to a pragmatic state apparatus Are the PLO and the PA interchangeable What type of power does the PA need to cultivate the support or to secure the compliance of the Palestinian people for the state building project Clearly the answers to these questions have a direct bearing on the education system Will this system promote a resistance identity or a state building legitimizing identity

Lordship and Liberation in Palestine-Israel Muhannad Ayyash, 2025-07-22 This interdisciplinary book provides timely fresh perspective on Palestine Israel by rethinking the nature of settler colonial sovereignty and the relationship between land and people Muhannad Ayyash argues that this relationship comes in two distinct forms a settler colonial type practiced by the Israeli state that consists of lordship over land and people and a decolonial type seen in Palestinian popular organizing that he calls land as life a reciprocal bond The former is characterized by private ownership possession and violent expulsion of others the latter by communal ownership belonging to the land and opposition to the violence of expulsion Ranging widely across theory and history Ayyash contends that the opposition between these two types is at the core of the Palestinian Israeli struggle The choice before us today he concludes is between the continuation of the Israeli settler colonial project in particular and the project of colonial modernity in general or the commencement of a decolonial age in Palestine Israel and beyond Offering both novel theorizations and politically engaged analysis Lordship and Liberation in Palestine Israel illuminates how decolonial sovereignties represent an alternative to settler colonial violence
