The Psychology of Visual Art George Mather, 2013-10-24 What can art tell us about how the brain works? And what can the brain tell us about how we perceive and create art? Humans have created visual art throughout history, and its significance has been an endless source of fascination and debate. Visual art is a product of the human brain, but is art so complex and sophisticated that brain function and evolution are not relevant to our understanding? This book explores the links between visual art and the brain by examining a broad range of issues, including the impact of eye and brain disorders on artistic output, the relevance of Darwinian principles to aesthetics, and the constraints imposed by brain processes on the perception of space, motion, and colour in art. Arguments and theories are presented in an accessible manner, and general principles are illustrated with specific art examples, helping students to apply their knowledge to new artworks.

Return Trip David Cycleback, 2013-07-14 Looking at visual illusions and how they work shows us that reality and human perception of reality are different things. Return Trip is a shortened, chopped up, and transformed version of prominent art historian Cycleback's earlier published works on aesthetics, psychology, epistemology, and philosophy of art. It examines aesthetic perception and cognitive biases in relationship to information processing and the search for knowledge. The aleatory structure and narrative is at turns academic, comic, poetic, and psychological. Cycleback was a 2013 Eric Hoffer Award Finalist for his book Conceits, much of that work incorporated into Return Trip. Reprinted by Beijing's Three Shadows Art Center, his books Judging the Authenticity of Photographs and Judging the Authenticity of Prints by The Masters were the first comprehensive books on the subjects published in Chinese.

Vision and Art Margaret Livingstone, 2008-04-01 A Harvard neurobiologist explains how vision works, citing the scientific origins of artistic genius and providing coverage of such topics as optical illusions and the correlation between learning disabilities and artistic skill.

Art and Expression Alberto Argenton, 2019-05-29 Perception of expression distinguishes our cognitive activity in a pervasive, significant, and peculiar way, and manifests itself paradigmatically in the vast world of artistic production. Art and Expression examines the cognitive processes involved in artistic production, aesthetic reception, understanding, and enjoyment. Using a phenomenological, theoretical, and methodological framework developed by Rudolf Arnheim and other important scholars interested in expressive media, Alberto Argenton considers a wide range of artistic works which span the whole arc of the history of western graphic and pictorial art. Argenton analyses the representational strategies of a dynamic and expressive character that can be reduced to basic aspects of perception, like obliqueness, amodal completion, and the bilateral function of
