Conceptions Of Modern Psychiatry:

Conceptions of Modern Psychiatry Harry Stack Sullivan, 1966-04 Psychiatry is the study of processes that involve or go on between people The field of psychiatry is the field of interpersonal relations under any and all circumstances in which these relations exist This is the thesis set forth by Harry Stack Sullivan in Conceptions of Modern Psychiatry the book that first expressed the central ideas of his theory of personality Through his development of the theory he made not only a vital contribution in the treatment of mental disorder in particular schizophrenia but he opened an entirely new approach to the study of human personality In the view of many analysts he made the most original contribution to psychiatry since Freud Roll May has said As Freud was the prophet for our schizoid age our age of unrelatedness in which beneath all the chatter of radio and newspapers and all the multitudes of contacts people are often strangers to each other
