R. F. Maunder, 2004 Evidence indicates that the concertos of Vivaldi Bach Haydn etc were performed as chamber music not the full orchestral works commonly assumed The concertos of Vivaldi Bach Handel and their contemporaries are some of the most popular and the most frequently performed pieces of classical music and the assumption has always been they were full orchestral works This book takes issue with this orthodox opinion to argue quite the reverse that contemporaries regarded the concerto as chamber music The author surveys the evidence from surviving printed and manuscript performance material from concerts throughout Europe between 1685 and 1750 the heyday of the concerto demonstrating that concertos were nearly always played one to a part at that time He makes a particularly close study of the scoring of the bass line discussing the question of what instruments were most appropriate and what was used when The late Dr RICHARD MAUNDER was Fellow of Christ's College Cambridge The Cambridge Companion to the Cello Robin Stowell, 1999-06-28 This is a compact composite and authoritative survey of the history and development of the cello and its repertory since the origins of the instrument The volume comprises thirteen essays written by a team of nine distinguished scholars and performers and is intended to develop the cello's historical perspective in breadth and from every relevant angle offering as comprehensive a coverage as possible It focuses in particular on four principal areas the instrument's structure development and fundamental acoustical principles the careers of the most distinguished cellists since the baroque era the cello repertory including chapters devoted to the concerto the sonata other solo repertory and ensemble music and its technique teaching methods and relevant aspects of historical and performance practice It is the most comprehensive book ever to be published about the instrument and provides essential information for performers students and teachers
