Bulgaria and Bulgarians Plamen Pavlov, 2009      Blood Ties İpek Yosmaoğlu, 2013-11-27 The region that is today Macedonia was long the heart of the Ottoman Empire in Europe It was home to a complex mix of peoples and faiths who had for hundreds of years lived together in relative peace To be sure these people were no strangers to coercive violence and various forms of depredations visited upon them by bandits and state agents In the final decades of the nineteenth century and throughout the twentieth century however the region was periodically racked by a bitter conflict that was qualitatively different from previous outbreaks of violence In Blood Ties İpek K Yosmaoglu explains the origins of this shift from sporadic to systemic and pervasive violence through a social history of the Macedonian Question Yosmaoglu's account begins in the aftermath of the Congress of Berlin 1878 when a potent combination of zero sum imperialism nascent nationalism and modernizing states set in motion the events that directly contributed to the outbreak of World War I and had consequences that reverberate to this day Focusing on the experience of the inhabitants of Ottoman Macedonia during this period she shows how communal solidarities broke down time and space were rationalized and the immutable form of the nation and national identity replaced polyglot fluid associations that had formerly defined people's sense of collective belonging The region was remapped populations were counted and relocated An escalation in symbolic and physical violence followed and it was through this process that nationalism became an ideology of mass mobilization among the common folk Yosmaoglu argues that national differentiation was a consequence and not the cause of violent conflict in Ottoman Macedonia

Religious Liberty in Transitional Societies John Anderson, 2003-08-14 It is commonly assumed that the issue of religion declines in political significance as societies modernise However the upheaval associated with the shift from authoritarian to more open regimes can be accompanied by a revitalisation of religion Individuals within these societies are struggling to find meaning in the seeming chaos of political change religious elites are seeking to define their own role within the new order and political elites are looking for new ways of ensuring legitimacy and building national unity In this book John Anderson constructs a theoretical framework where he compares and contrasts the politics of religious liberty in two Southern European countries two Central Eastern European countries and the evolution of the former USSR particularly Russia Exploring these issues of religious recognition and religious diversity Anderson attempts to expose the wider problem of creating a democratic mentality in such transitional societies through extensive original research and interviews

Aleksandur Stamboliiski Richard Crampton, 2009-04-01 Aleksandur Stamboliiski was one of the most original politicians of the 20th century His tragedy was that he came to power at the end of the First World War in which Bulgaria had been defeated It fell to him therefore to accept and apply the peace settlement This created tensions between him and traditional Bulgarian nationalism tensions which ended with his murder in 1923 The book will examine the origins of this traditional nationalism from the foundation of the Bulgarian state in 1878 and of the agrarian movement which came to represent the social aspirations of the majority of the peasant population It will also illustrate Stamboliiski's rise to power and examine his ideology Emphasis will be placed on how this ideology clashed with the monarchy the military and the nationalists Stamboliiski's policies in the Balkan wars and the First World War will be described before the details of the 1919 peace settlement are examined The implementation of those terms will then be discussed as will the coup of 1923 The legacy of the peace treaty in the inter war period and of Stamboliiski's image in the years after his downfall will form the final section of the book Entangled Histories of the Balkans - Volume Three Roumen Daskalov, Alexander
