

CITIZENSHIP

- Citizenship is defined as the condition of receiving rights, duties, and responsibilities as a member of a state or nation.
- The discussion of citizenship can raise some difficult questions.
 1. Who defines rights, duties, and responsibilities?
 2. How do we balance rights with duties and responsibilities?
 3. Who gets to be a citizen?
- This brings us to the civics concept of government.

Milena Tripkovic, 2019 Criminal disenfranchisement the practice of restricting electoral rights following criminal conviction is the only surviving electoral restriction of adult mentally competent citizens in contemporary democracies Despite the strong devotion to the principle of universal suffrage criminal offenders are still routinely deprived of active and passive franchise while the justifications for such limitations remain elusive and incoherent In Punishment and Citizenship Milena Tripkovic develops an empirical and normative account of criminal disenfranchisement Starting from historical precedents of such restrictions and examining the current policies of a number of European countries Tripkovic argues that while criminal disenfranchisement is considered a form of punishment it should instead be viewed as a citizenship sanction imposed when a citizen fails to perform their role as a member of a political community In order to determine the justifications of disenfranchisement Tripkovic explores various citizenship ideals and examines whether criminal offenders comply with the expectations that are posed before them After developing a theoretical framework of citizenship duties Tripkovic concludes that very few criminal offenders fail to satisfy fundamental citizenship conditions and exhaustive voting restrictions cannot ultimately be justified A comprehensive assessment of criminal disenfranchisement Punishment and Citizenship offers concrete policy suggestions to determine the limited circumstances under which electoral rights could justifiably be withheld from criminal offenders Disenfranchised Joel Andreas,2019 In the decades following World War II factories in many countries not only provided secure employment and a range of economic entitlements but also recognized workers as legitimate stakeholders enabling them to claim rights to participate in decision making and hold factory leaders accountable In recent decades as employment has become more precarious these attributes of industrial citizenship have been eroded and workers have increasingly been reduced to hired hands As Joel Andreas shows in Disenfranchised no country has experienced these changes as dramatically as China Drawing on a decade of field research including interviews with both factory workers and managers Andreas traces the changing political status of workers inside Chinese factories from 1949 to the present carefully analyzing how much power they have actually had to shape their working conditions Nationality Laws of the United States United States.
