Around The Community:

A Business Ecology Perspective on Community-Driven Open Source Markus Radits, 2018-11-26 This thesis approaches the phenomenon of open source software OSS from a managerial and organisational point of view In a slightly narrower sense this thesis studies commercialisation aspects around community driven open source The term community driven signifies open source projects that are managed steered and controlled by communities of volunteers as opposed to those that are managed steered and controlled by single corporate sponsors By adopting a business ecology perspective this thesis places emphasis on the larger context within which the commercialisation of OSS is embedded e g global and collaborative production regimes ideological foundations market characteristics and diffuse boundary conditions Because many business benefits arise as a consequence of the activities taking place in the communities and ecosystems around open source projects a business ecology perspective may be a useful analytical guide for understanding the opportunities challenges and risks that firms face in commercializing OSS There are two overarching themes guiding this thesis The first theme concerns the challenges that firms face in commercialising community driven open source There is a tendency in the literature on business ecosystems and open source to emphasise the benefits opportunities and positive aspects of behaviour at the expense of the challenges that firms face However business ecosystems are not only spaces of opportunity they may also pose a variety of challenges that firms need to overcome in order to be successful To help rectify this imbalance in the literature the first theme particularly focuses on the challenges that firms face in commercialising community driven open source The underlying ambition is to facilitate a more balanced and holistic understanding of the collaborative and competitive dynamics in ecosystems around open source projects The other theme concerns the complex intertwining of community engagement and profit oriented venturing As is acknowledged in the literature the subject of firm community interaction has become increasingly important because the survival success and sustainability of peer production communities has become of strategic relevance to many organisations However while many strategic benefits may arise as a consequence of firm community interaction there is a lack of research studying how the value creating logics of firm community interaction are embedded within the bigger picture in which they occur Bearing this bigger picture in mind this thesis explores the intertwining of volunteer community engagement and profit oriented venturing by focusing on four aspects that are theorised in the literature reinforcement complementarity synergy and reciprocity This thesis is designed as a qualitative exploratory single case study The empirical case is Joomla a popular open source content management system In a nutshell the Joomla case in this thesis comprises the interactions in the Joomla community and the commercial activities around the Joomla platform e g web development consulting marketing customisation extensions In order to achieve greater analytical depth the business ecology perspective is complemented with ideas and propositions from other theoretical areas such as stakeholder theory community governance organizational identity motivation theory pricing and bundling The findings show that the common challenges in commercialising community driven open source revolve around nine distinct factors that roughly cluster into three domains the ecosystem the community and the firm In short the domain of the ecosystem comprises the global operating environment the pace of change and the cannibalisation of ideas The domain of the community comprises the platform policy platform image and the voluntary nature of the open source project And finally the domain of the firm comprises the blurring boundaries between private and professional lives the difficulty of estimating costs and firm dependencies Based on these insights a framework for analysing community based value creation in business ecosystems is proposed This framework integrates collective innovation community engagement and value capture into a unified model of value creation in contexts of firm community interaction Furthermore the findings reveal demonstrable effects of reinforcement complementarity synergy and reciprocity in the intertwining of volunteer community engagement and profit oriented venturing By showing that this intertwining can be strong in empirical cases where commercial activities are often implicitly assumed to be absent this thesis provides a more nuanced understanding of firm involvement in the realm of open source Based on the empirical and analytical insights a number of further theoretical implications are discussed such as the role of intersubjective trust in relation to the uncertainties that commercial actors face an alternative way of classifying community types the metaphor of superorganisms in the context of open source issues pertaining to the well being of community participants and issues in relation to the transitioning of open source developers from a community based to an entrepreneurial self identity when commercialising an open source solution Furthermore this thesis builds on six sub studies that make individual contributions of their own In a broad sense this thesis contributes to the literature streams on the commercialisation of OSS the business value and strategic aspects of open source the interrelationships between community forms of organising and entrepreneurial activities and the nascent research on ecology perspectives on peer production communities A variety of opportunities for future research are highlighted

Beyond the Kale Kristin Reynolds, Nevin Cohen, 2016 Urban agriculture is increasingly considered an important part of creating just and sustainable cities Yet the benefits that many people attribute to urban agriculture fresh food green space educational opportunities can mask structural inequities thereby making political transformation harder to achieve Beyond the Kale argues that urban agricultural projects focused explicitly on dismantling oppressive systems have the greatest potential to achieve substantive social change Through in depth interviews and public forums with prominent urban agriculture activists and supporters primarily people of color and women whose strategies have often been underrepresented in the literature Kristin Reynolds and Nevin Cohen illustrate how urban farmers and gardeners not only grow food for their communities but also use their activities and spaces to disrupt the dynamics of power and privilege that perpetuate inequity Beyond the Kale provides recommendations for these in philanthropy government nonprofit organizations and academia to support such initiatives Book jacket

University Community Engagement and Lifelong Learning Julia Preece, 2017-07-13 This book offers a conceptual re think of how university community engagement functions as a lifelong learning resource for communities While having a specific focus on the South African context it has important implications for other universities which are concerned with their communities and makes a compelling argument for the university as a public good in spite of current trends towards marketization and commodification of higher education The book draws on a theoretical framework of capabilities asset based community development and the adult learning concept of dialogue to propose a model whereby the boundary walls of the university become metaphorically porous so that community members feel free to interact with the university as equal members of society A historical outline of African universities is provided as well as an exploration of the evolution of terms for community engagement service learning and learning cities and an examination of the policy and practice implications for the ideological model of a porous university

Middle-class School Choice in Urban Spaces Emma Rowe, 2016-12-01 Middle class School Choice in Urban Spaces examines government funded public schools from a range of perspectives and scholarship in order to examine the historical political and economic conditions of public schooling within a globalized post welfare context In this book Rowe argues that post welfare policy conditions are detrimental to government funded public schools as they engender consistent pressure in rearticulating the public school in alignment with the market produce tensions in serving the more historical conceptualizations of public schooling and are preoccupied by contemporary profit driven concerns Chapters focus on public schooling from different global perspectives with examples from Chile and the US to examine how various social movements encapsulate ideologies around public schooling Rowe also draws upon a rich five year ethnographic study of campaigns lobbying the Victorian State Government in Australia for a brand new local specific public school Critical attention is paid to the public school as a means to achieve empowerment and overcome discrimination and both a local and global lens are used to identify how parents choose the public school the values they attach to it and the strategies they use to obtain it Also considered however are how quality gaps distances and differences between public schools threaten to undermine the democracy of education as a means for individuals to be socially mobile and escape poverty This book makes an important contribution to our understanding of global social movements and activism around public education As such it will be of key interest to researchers academics and postgraduate students in the field of education specifically those working on school choice class and identity as well as educational geography

Waddington, Fabien Jobard, Mike King, 2013-01-11 The broad aim of this book is to provide a general basis for comparatively analysing and understanding the French riots of October November 2005 and the corresponding British disorders which occurred in the spring summer of 2001 The first of the French riots broke out on 27 October in the north Parisian banlieue suburb of Clichy sous Bois when two teenage youths of Muslim heritage were electrocuted in a substation while fleeing from the police The two youths had apparently become unwittingly involved together with their friends in a police investigation of a break in It is not clear whether they had actually been chased by police officers Nevertheless a rumor to this effect quickly circulated the locality provoking violent confrontation between youths and police Three more weeks of rioting then ensued in neighbouring Parisian suburbs and other major French cities with similar concentrations of ethnic minorities The riots invariably involved thousands of youths from poorer areas who confronted the police set fire to local buildings and ignited hundreds of motor vehicles Further rioting though not on the same scale as in 2005 occurred subsequently in 2006 and 2007 England and Wales have had their own counterparts to the French riots In the early and mid 1980s there were a number of clashes between police and African Caribbean youths in inner city areas Further in 2001 rioting broke out in the northern mill towns and cities of Bradford Burnley Leeds and Oldham All of these later instances involved youths from Pakistani or Bangladeshi descent In contrast to the riots that occurred in France though a contributing factor to 2001 riots was the activities of white neo Fascists Many official reports and academic studies followed each wave of disorder each questioning the effectiveness of Britain's multicultural society in addition to other possible factors such as the marginalisation and criminalisation of minority ethnic youth and their relations with the police Such issues were again on the agenda after more rioting occurred in the Lozells area of Birmingham in 2005 Unlike the previous disorders this entailed conflict between South Asian and African Caribbean youths following a rumor that a young African girl had been gang raped by South Asians British attempts to analyse and remedy the underlying causes of the riots constitute a potentially valuable resource to French academics practitioners and policy makers In turn the French experience provides a fertile basis for re applying testing and enhancing existing British theory and policy The book consists of a highly coherent theoretically rich and thematically comprehensive collection of papers which provide an unparalleled description and comparative analysis of the French and British riots along with social policy recommendations to help to address the underlying issues Advances in Quantitative Ethnography Golnaz Arastoopour Irgens, Simon Knight, 2023-10-21 This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 5th International Conference on Advances in Quantitative Ethnography ICQE 2023 held in Melbourne VIC Australia during October 8 12 2023 The 33 full papers included in this book were carefully reviewed and selected from 39 submissions They were organized in topical sections as follows understanding learners and learning society culture identity and justice and advances in QE methodologies
