Lilienfeld,William T. O'Donohue,2012-12-06 The idea that there is a fundamental rift between researchers and practitioners should not come as a surprise to anyone familiar with the current literature trends and general feelings in the field of clinical psychology Central to this scientist practitioner gap is an underlying disagreement over the nature of knowledge namely that while some individuals point to research studies as the foundation of truth others argue that clinical experience offers a more adequate understanding of the causes assessment and treatment of mental illness The Great Ideas of Clinical Science is an ambitious attempt to dig beneath these fundamental differences and reintroduce the reader to unifying principles often overlooked by students and professionals alike The editors have identified 17 such universals and have pulled together a group of the most prolific minds in the field to present the philosophical methodological and conceptual ideas that define the state of the field Each chapter focuses on practical as well as conceptual points offering valuable insight to practicing clinicians researchers and teachers of any level of experience Written for student practitioner researcher and educated layperson this integrative volume aims to facilitate communication among all mental health professionals and to narrow the scientist practitioner gap Purple Brains Annabelle Dufourcq,Annemie Halsema,Katrine Smiet,Karen Vintges,2024-05-16 Feminist philosophy seems to always exceed its own limits it is dynamic shifting and in dialogue with other academic disciplines The adjective feminist marks not so much a specific subfield of philosophy or topic that is studied but a political sensibility an engagement in practicing philosophy The playful title Purple Brains indicates a thinking that goes beyond established binaries notably the gender binary signified by the colors pink and blue As feminists we face the challenge of finding our own place and inventing ways to understand and overcome discrimination and exclusion Situated within a world we want to change feminists cannot afford to reject unlikely interlocutors out of hand but must instead engage in interdisciplinary intergenerational and cross fertilizing dialogues This volume brings together 19 articles that practice feminist philosophy through an engagement with the work of Dutch philosopher Veronica Vasterling As one of the pioneering women philosophers active in Dutch academia since the mid 1980s Vasterling explicitly expanded her outlook to embrace feminist themes and authors She stands out as a prominent figure in the exploration of the boundaries of feminism through critical dialogue across multiple perspectives Her work not only explores neuropsychology through a feminist lens but also extends into domains such as critical phenomenology of gender and race critical hermeneutics and subjects including sexual difference the philosophical oeuvre of Hannah Arendt and that of Judith Butler The Purple Island and Anatomy in Early Seventeenth-century Literature, Philosophy, and Theology Peter Mitchell, 2007 Sets out to reconstruct and analyze the rationality of Phineas Fletcher's use of figurality in The Purple Island 1633 a poetic allegory of human anatomy This book demonstrates that the analogies and metaphors of literary works share coherence and consistency with anatomy textbooks

Quinn,S. E. G. Lea,2010 Human adults appear different from other animals in their ability to form abstract mental representations that go beyond perceptual similarity In short they can conceptualize the world This apparent uniqueness leads to an immediate puzzle WHEN and HOW does this abstract system come into being To answer this question we need to explore the origins of adult concepts both developmentally and phylogenetically When does the developing child acquire the ability to use abstract concepts Does the transition occur around 2 years with the onset of symbolic representation and language Or is it independent of the emergence of language When in evolutionary history did an abstract representational system emerge Is there something unique about the human brain How would a computational system operating on the basis of perceptual associations develop into a system operating on the basis of abstract relations Is this ability present in other species but masked by their inability to verbalise abstractions Perhaps the very notion of concepts is empty and should be done away with altogether This book tackles the age old puzzle of what might be unique about human concepts Intuitively we have a sense that our thoughts are somehow different from those of animals and young children such as infants Yet if true this raises the question of where and how this uniqueness arises What are the factors that have played out during the life course of the individual and over the evolution of humans that have contributed to the emergence of this apparently unique ability This volume brings together a collection of world specialists who have grappled with these questions from different perspectives to try to resolve the issue It includes contributions from leading psychologists neuroscientists child and infant specialists and animal cognition specialists Taken together this story leads to the idea that there is no unique ingredient in the emergence of human concepts but rather a powerful and potentially unique mix of biological abilities and personal and social history that has led to where the human mind now stands A must read for students and researchers in the cognitive sciences
