Conceptualizing Metaphors:

Conceptualizing Metaphors Ivan Mladenov, 2007-04-11 The enigmatic thought of Charles S Peirce 1839 1914 considered by many to be one of the great philosophers of all time involves inquiry not only into virtually all branches and sources of modern semiotics physics cognitive sciences and mathematics but also logic which he understood to be the only useful approach to the riddle of reality This book represents an attempt to outline an analytical method based on Charles Peirce's least explored branch of philosophy which is his evolutionary cosmology and his notion that the universe is made of an effete mind The chief argument conceives of human discourse as a giant metaphor in regard to outside reality The metaphors arise in our imagination as lightning fast schemes for acting speaking or thinking To illustrate this each chapter will present a well known metaphor and explain how it is unfolded and conceptualized according to the new method for revealing meaning This original work will interest students and scholars in many fields including semiotics linguistics and philosophy

Conceptualizing Music Lawrence M. Zbikowski, 2002-11-14 This book shows how recent work in cognitive science especially that developed by cognitive linguists and cognitive psychologists can be used to explain how we understand music The book focuses on three cognitive processes categorization cross domain mapping and the use of conceptual models and explores the part these play in theories of musical organization The first part of the book provides a detailed overview of the relevant work in cognitive science framed around specific musical examples The second part brings this perspective to bear on a number of issues with which music scholarship has often been occupied including the emergence of musical syntax and its relationship to musical semiosis the problem of musical ontology the relationship between words and music in songs and conceptions of musical form and musical hierarchy The book will be of interest to music theorists musicologists and ethnomusicologists as well as those with a professional or avocational interest in the application of work in cognitive science to humanistic principles

The Conceptualization of Dress in Prophetic Metaphors S.J. Parrott, 2023-06-19 While the last four years has seen a renewed interest in dress in biblical studies much of this work focuses on dress as object what it is looks like and who wears it In consequence the symbolic and rhetorical function of dress in metaphors is often reduced to its function in real life In response this study bridges the conversation from what dress is to what dress is doing By focusing on dress as subject and a concept this study identifies constellations that hold prophetic metaphors of the investiture divestiture of dress together with respect to identity formation deformation suffering and destruction

Embodied Conceptualization or Neural Realization Qingqing Zhao,2019-08-31 This book focuses on linguistic synaesthesia in a hitherto less studied language Mandarin Chinese and adopts a corpus driven approach to support the analysis and argumentation The study identifies directional tendencies and underlying mechanisms for Mandarin synaesthetic adjectives By doing so it not only provides an added layer of understanding for theories of linguistic synaesthesia but also offers evidence to help refine previous theories such as Embodiment Theory and Conceptual Metaphor Theory In brief the book makes a significant contribution to the development of Cognitive Linguistics The intended readership includes but is not limited to graduate students in linguistics and researchers interested in Chinese linguistics in particular and in lexical semantics and cognitive linguistics in general

Novelty in Metaphors Ramona Ileana Pistol,2025-11-03 This book offers a groundbreaking semiotic exploration of metaphor as a fundamental cognitive process shaping how individuals experience and understand the world Moving beyond traditional frameworks it examines metaphor as a mode of creative discovery where meaning emerges through the interplay of perception emotion and imagination Drawing on Peirce s semiotics phenomenology and neuroscience the book demonstrates how metaphorical thinking enables navigation of ambiguity and creates new perspectives across domains from art and literature to science and everyday reasoning By integrating embodied cognition with aesthetic experience it illuminates how metaphors operate at the intersection of logical reasoning and emotional response revealing them as instruments of inquiry that transform engagement with reality The volume will be essential reading for scholars across disciplines seeking to understand the creative foundations of human cognition and meaning making

Cultural Linguistics and (Re)conceptualized Tradition Judit Baranyiné Kóczy,Veronika Szelid,2024-12-16 This book offers a cutting edge compilation of studies on re conceptualized traditions in a wide variety of discourses such as the language of emotion folklore religion and morality the natural environment idioms and proverbs It also raises complex theoretical and methodological questions regarding the cultural cognitive linguistic approach to metaphors and figurative language embodiment diachronic and corpus linguistics and pragmatics The languages under scrutiny range from well documented to minority varieties and even to endangered languages and dialects Building from the assertion that cultural conceptualizations are rendered as manifestations of the interplay between language culture and the collective cognition of communities as handed down from generation to generation this edited book discovers and rebuilds traditional cultural cognition Employing analytical tools provided by the cultural cognitive linguistic framework the authors investigate how the field is being revitalized and renegotiated in present day cultural contexts and how it contributes to shaping our contemporary understanding of the world It is useful for

Metaphors Dead and Alive, Sleeping and Waking Cornelia Müller, 2009-10-15 Traditional thinking on metaphors has divided them into two camps dead and alive Conventional expressions from everyday language are classified as dead while much rarer novel or poetic metaphors are alive In the 1980s new theories on the cognitive processes involved with the use of metaphor challenged these assumptions but with little empirical support Drawing on the latest research in linguistics semiotics philosophy and psychology Cornelia Müller here unveils a new approach that refutes the rigid dead alive dichotomy offering in its place a more dynamic model sleeping and waking To build this model Müller presents an overview of notions of metaphor from the classical period to the present studies in detail how metaphors function in speech text gesture and images and examines the way mixed metaphors sometimes make sense and sometimes do not This analysis leads her to conclude that metaphors may oscillate between various degrees of sleeping and waking as their status changes depending on context and intention Bridging the gap between conceptual metaphor theory and more traditional linguistic theories this book is a major advance for the field and will be vital to novices and initiates alike

Metaphors of ANGER across Languages: Universality and Variation Zoltan Kövecses, Réka Benczes, Veronika Szelid, 2024-11-04 Anger is one of the basic emotions of human emotional experience informing and guiding many of our choices and actions Although it has received considerable scholarly attention in a number of disciplines including linguistics a basic question has still remained unresolved why do variations in the folk model of anger exist across languages if it is indeed a basic emotion rooted in largely universal bodily experience By drawing on a wide selection of comparable linguistic data from dozens of languages including a number of less researched languages this volume provides the most comprehensive account of what is universal and what is variable in the folk model of anger and why It also investigates the role that metonymies might play in the emergence of anger related metaphors and in what ways context influences or shapes anger metaphors and thereby the resulting folk model of anger No such volume exists in the cognitive linguistic literature on anger or on emotions for that matter The book is thus an essential contribution to the study of anger and will serve as basic reading for any researcher interested in how the conceptualization of anger is constructed via the interplay of bodily experience language and the larger cultural context

The Nature and Ontogenesis of Meaning Willis F. Overton, David Stuart Palermo, 1994 Throughout its evolution Piaget's theory has placed meaning at the center of all attempts to understand the nature and development of knowing For Piaget all knowing whether sensorimotor representational or reasoned and whether directed toward successful problem solutions or toward general understanding is necessarily a construction which arises out of meaning making activity It was in this context that the editors of this volume approached the board of directors of the Jean Piaget Society with a proposal to organize a recent annual symposium around the topic of the nature and development of meaning In forming this symposium and in moving from symposium to integrated text the editors wanted to insure both a breadth and depth to the analysis of the topic Addressing philosophical theoretical and empirical perspectives this issue oriented volume provides an integrated exploration of the current understanding of the nature and development of meaning Contemporary issues that frame alternative understandings of the nature of meaning nativist vs constructivist positions and computational vs embodied mind contexts are examined as they impact on the investigation of meaning Comparative cognitive and linguistic developmental dimensions of meaning are described and discussed

Metaphor Studies: Theories, Methods, Approaches, and Future Perspectives Ilaria Rizzato, Valentina Cuccio, Aletta Gesina Dorst, 2024-12-12 Metaphor has been studied as a linguistic conceptual and communicative phenomenon in a wide range of disciplines including linguistics literary studies philosophy education political science media studies communication science psychology and neurosciences While the Cognitive Theory of Metaphor has dominated the field since the cognitive turn in the 1980s alternatives have been proposed including the Neural Theory of Metaphor the Relevance Theory Approach the Complex Systems Approach and the Dynamic Systems Approach Though studies are still often text based there is a growing body of research on visual metaphor multimodal metaphor and gestural metaphor as well as experimental research ranging from studies on metaphor processing and comprehension to studies in NLP and machine learning Metaphor Studies is thus a highly interdisciplinary field that encompasses a myriad of theories approaches and methods In current metaphor research each of these strands is facing new challenges and offering new venues of cutting edge research using state of the art technologies Researchers tend to focus on their own research areas and provide in depth views within the scope of their own disciplines Metaphor Studies do not seem to escape this phenomenon in spite of the large number of disciplines they draw on ranging from linguistics to psychology to the theory of science Hence there seem to be little cooperation and communication across different fields methods and approaches having metaphors and figurative language as their main object of investigation This Research Topic aims to promote cross fertilization among the many research areas involved in Metaphor Studies thus bringing together different methods and perspectives and offering a comprehensive overview of the possible research scenarios
