Teaching Environmental Writing Isabel Galley, 2020-05-14 Environmental writing is an increasingly popular literary genre and a multifaceted genre at that Recently dominated by works of new nature writing environmental writing includes works of poetry and fiction about the world around us In the last two decades universities have begun to offer environmental writing modules and courses with the intention of teaching students skills in the field of writing inspired by the natural world This book asks how students are being guided into writing about environments Informed by independently conducted interviews with educators and a review of existing pedagogical guides it explores recurring instructions given to students for writing about the environment and compares these pedagogical approaches to the current theory and practice of ecocriticism by scholars such as Ursula Heise and Timothy Morton Proposing a set of original pedagogical exercises influenced by ecocriticism the book draws on a number of self reflexive environmentally conscious poets including Juliana Spahr Jorie Graham and Les Murray as creative and stimulating models for teachers and students

Biopoetics Andreas Weber, 2016-09-01 Meaning feeling and expression the experience of inwardness matter most in human existence The perspective of biopoetics shows that this experience is shared by all organisms Being alive means to exist through relations that have existential concern and to express these dimensions through the body and its gestures All life takes place within one poetic space which is shared between all beings and which is accessible through subjective sensual experience We take part in this through our empirical subjectivity which arises from the experiences and needs of living beings and which makes them open to access and sharing in a poetic objectivity Biopoetics breaks free from the causal mechanic paradigm which made biology unable to account for mind and meaning Biology becomes a science of expression connection and subjectivity which can understand all organisms including humans as feeling agents in a shared ecology of meaningful relations embedded in a symbolical and material metabolism of the biosphere
