Alt 20 New Trends Generations:

African Literature and the Future Adeoti, Gbemisola, 2015-12-01 Many African countries achieved independence from their colonisers over five decades ago but the people and the continent largely remain mere spectators in the arena of their own dance The post independence states are supposed to be sovereign but the levers of economic and political powers still reside in the donor states Not in many fora is the complex reality that defines Africa more trenchantly articulated than in imaginative literature produced about and on the continent This is the crux of the essays collected in African Literature and the Future The book reflects on Africa's past and present addressing anxieties about the future through the epistemological lens of literature The contributors peep ahead from a backward glance They dissect the trend and tenor of politics and their impact on the socio cultural and economic development of the continent as portrayed in imaginative writings over the years One salient feature of African literature is the close affinity between art and politics in its polemics This is well established in all the six essays in the book as the authors stress the interconnections between literature and society in their textual analyses On the whole there is an overwhelming feeling of angst and pessimism but the authors perceive a glimmer of hope despite daunting odds under different conditions Thus they depict the plausible fate of Africa in the twenty first century as informed by its ancient and recent past gleaned from primary texts

New Women's Writing in African Literature Ernest Emenyonu, Patricia Thornton Emenyonu, 2004 African women writers have come a long way since the 1960s when they were hardly acknowledged or noticed as serious writers In the past four decades their works have been steadily rising in quantity and quality Today these writers are seriously redefining images of womanhood providing new visions and reshaping erstwhile distorted characterizations of African women in fiction ERNEST EMENYONU is Professor of the Department of Africana Studies University of Michigan Flint North America Africa World Press Nigeria HEBN

Environmental Transformations Ernest N. Emenyonu, 2020 Investigates what literary strategies African writers adopt to convey the impact of climate transformation and environmental change This special issue examines the ways fiction and poetry engage with environmental consciousness and how African literary criticism addresses the implications of global environmental transformations Does environmentalist literature offer new possibilities for critical thinking about the future What constitutes environmentalist fiction and poetry What kind of texts themes and topics does climate writing include Does any text in which the environment features become available to environmentalist criticism In their engagement with the diverse genres themes and frameworks through which contemporary African writers address topics including urbanisation cross species communication nature and climate change contributors to this special issue help to define African environmental writing They look at the literary strategies adopted by creative writers to convey the impact of environmental transformation in narratives that are historically informed by a century of colonialism nationalist political activism urbanisation and postcolonial migration How does environmental literature intervene in these histories Can creative writers with their powerfully post human and cross species imaginations carry out the ethical work demanded by contemporary climate science From Tanure Ojaide's and Helon Habila's attention to environmental decimation in the Niger Delta through to Nnedi Okorafor's and Kofi Anyidoho's imaginative cross species encounters the special issue asks how literature mediates the specificities of climate change in an era of global capitalism and technological transformation and what the limits of creative writing and literary criticism are as tools for discussing environmental issues This volume also includes a Literary Supplement Guest Editors Cajetan Iheka Associate Professor of English Yale University and Stephanie Newell Professor of English Yale University Series Editor Ernest N Emenyonu Professor of Africana Studies at the University of Michigan Flint Reviews Editor Obi Nwakanma Fellow Department of English University of Central Florida
