Committee on Armed Services, 2010 Beyond Oneness and Difference Brook Ziporyn, 2013-10-29 Beyond Oneness and Difference considers the development of one of the key concepts of Chinese intellectual history Li A grasp of the strange history of this term and its seemingly conflicting implications as oneness and differentiation as the knowable and as what transcends knowledge as the good and as the transcendence of good and bad as order and as omnipresence raises questions about the most basic building blocks of our thinking This exploration began in the book's companion volume Ironies of Oneness and Difference which detailed how formative Confucian and Daoist thinkers approached and demarcated concepts of coherence order and value identifying both ironic and non ironic trends in the elaboration of these core ideas In the present volume Brook Ziporyn goes on to examine the implications of Li as they develop in Neo Daoist metaphysics and in Chinese Buddhism ultimately becoming foundational to Song and Ming dynasty Neo Confucianism the orthodox ideology of late imperial China Ziporyn's interrogation goes beyond analysis to reveal the unsuspected range of human thinking on these most fundamental categories of ontology metaphysics epistemology and ethics House of Commons - Health Committee: After Francis: Making A Difference - HC 657 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Health Committee, 2013-09-18 The NHS needs to be an organization in which an open dialogue about care quality is part of the natural culture of the organization not a duty which only arises in cases of service failure Robert Francis made 290 recommendations in his report but in truth they boil down to just one that the culture of doing the system's business is pervasive in parts of the NHS and has to change Many who raise their concerns in the NHS at present risk serious consequences for their employment and professional status But disciplinary procedures professional conduct hearings and employment tribunals are not the proper place for honestly held concerns about patient safety and care quality to be aired constructively The NHS standard contract imposes a duty of candour on all NHS providers This is an essential principle but it is not adequately understood or applied It should mean that all providers create a culture which is routinely open both with their patients and their commissioners The same principle should apply to commissioners so that they are routinely open and accountable to local communities The Health Committee recommended this approach in 2011 and repeats that now It should be a prime role of the CQC to encourage the development of this culture within care providers and of NHS England to develop the same culture within commissioners The Health Committee will in future work closely with the Professional Standards Authority to develop the accountability process for professional regulators in healthcare

Rescue Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee,2005-06-07 About civil maritime and aeronautical search and rescue services Towards a neuroscience of social interaction Ulrich Pfeiffer,Bert Timmermans,Kai Vogeley,Chris Frith,Leonhard Schilbach, The burgeoning field of social neuroscience has begun to illuminate the complex biological bases of human social cognitive abilities However in spite of being based on the premise of investigating the neural bases of interacting minds the majority of studies have focused on studying brains in isolation using paradigms that investigate offline social cognition i e social cognition from a detached observer s point of view asking study participants to read out the mental states of others without being engaged in interaction with them Consequently the neural correlates of real time social interaction have remained elusive and may paradoxically represent the dark matter of social neuroscience More recently a growing number of researchers have begun to study online social cognition i e social cognition from a participant s point of view based on the assumption that there is something fundamentally different when we are actively engaged with others in real time social interaction as compared to when we merely observe them Whereas for offline social cognition interaction and feedback are merely a way of gathering data about the other person that feeds into processing algorithms inside the agent it has been proposed that in online social cognition the knowledge of the other at least in part resides in the interaction dynamics between the agents Furthermore being a participant in an ongoing interaction may entail a commitment toward being responsive created by important differences in the motivational foundations of online and offline social cognition In order to promote the development of the neuroscientific investigation of online social cognition this Frontiers Research Topic aims at bringing together contributions from researchers in social neuroscience and related fields whose work involves the study of at least two individuals and sometimes two brains rather than single individuals and brains responding to a social context Specifically this Research Topic will adopt an interdisciplinary perspective on what it is that separates online from offline social cognition and the putative differences in the recruitment of underlying processes and mechanisms Here an important focal point will be to address the various roles of social interaction in contributing to and at times constituting our awareness of other minds For this Research Topic we therefore solicit reviews original research articles opinion and method papers which address the investigation of social interaction and go beyond traditional concepts and ways of experimentation in doing so While focusing on work in the neurosciences this Research Topic also welcomes contributions in the form of behavioral studies psychophysiological investigations methodological innovations computational approaches developmental and patient studies By focusing on cutting edge research in social neuroscience and related fields this Frontiers Research Topic will create new insights concerning the neurobiology of social interaction and holds the promise of helping social neuroscience to really go social which would extend competition in the water industry The MPs are concerned that the Draft Bill contains only a broad framework and leaves too much of the important detail to be decided by the regulator Ofwat or to be introduced through secondary legislation that receives less parliamentary scrutiny In welcoming the opportunities for greater competition within the retail water sector providing billing services the MPs ask Government to get on with implementing changes that would reduce flooding many of which were recommended nearly five years ago The MPs highlight the importance of managing our water resources sustainably and efficiently They recommend that encouraging sustainable development be elevated to a primary duty of the regulator and that the Government brings forward legislation to enable the abstraction regime to be reformed by 2022 In addition they recommend implementation of existing provisions on bad debt and encouraging greater use of water meters both of which would lower customers water bills However the report concludes that the Government needs to undertake further work before embarking on upstream competition which would enable companies to compete in the supply of water

Dialogues between Faith and Reason John H. Smith, 2011-10-15 The contemporary theologian Hans Kng has asked if the death of God proclaimed by Nietzsche as the event of modernity was inevitable Did the empowering of new forms of rationality in Western culture beginning around 1500 lead necessarily to the reduction or privatization of faith In Dialogues between Faith and Reason John H Smith traces a major line in the history of theology and the philosophy of religion down the slippery slope of secularization from Luther and Erasmus through Idealism to Nietzsche Heidegger and contemporary theory such as that of Derrida Habermas Vattimo and Asad At the same time Smith points to the persistence of a tradition that grew out of the Reformation and continues in the mostly Protestant philosophical reflection on whether and how faith can be justified by reason In this accessible and vigorously argued book Smith posits that faith and reason have long been locked in mutual engagement in which they productively challenge each other as partners in an ongoing dialogue Smith is struck by the fact that although in the secularized West the death of God is said to be fundamental to the modern condition our current post modernity is often characterized as a postsecular time For Smith this means not only that we are experiencing a broad based return of religion but also and more important for his argument that we are now able to recognize the role of religion within the history of modernity Emphasizing that thanks to the logos located in the beginning the death of God is part of the inner logic of the Christian tradition he argues that this same strand of reasoning also ensures that God will always return often in new forms In Smith s view rational reflection on God has both undermined and justified faith while faith has rejected and relied on rational argument Neither a defense of atheism nor a call to belief his book explores the long history of their interaction in modern religious and philosophical thought
