and historically plants have yielded many important drugs for human use from morphine discovered in the early nineteenth century to the more recent paclitaxel and artemisinin. Today we are witnessing a global resurgence in interest and use of plant based therapies and botanical products and natural products remain an important and viable source of lead compounds in many drug discovery programs. This Special Issue on Plant Natural Products for Human Health compiles a series of scientific reports to demonstrate the medicinal potentials of plant natural products. It covers a range of disease targets such as diabetes, inflammation, cancer, neurological disease, cardiovascular disease, liver damage, bacterial and fungus infection, and malaria. These papers provide important insights into the current state of research on drug discovery and new techniques. It is hoped that this Special Issue will serve as a timely reference for researchers and scholars who are interested in the discovery of potentially useful molecules from plant sources for health related applications.
