From the Sketchbooks of the Great Artists Claude Marks, 1972 Late Modernism Robert Genter, 2011-06-06 In the thirty years after World War II American intellectual and artistic life changed as dramatically as did the rest of society Gone were the rebellious lions of modernism Joyce Picasso Stravinsky and nearing exhaustion were those who took up their mantle as abstract expressionism gave way to pop art and the barren formalism associated with the so called high modernists wilted before the hothouse cultural brew of the 1960s According to conventional thinking it was around this time that postmodernism with its characteristic skepticism and relativism was born In Late Modernism historian Robert Genter remaps the landscape of American modernism in the early decades of the Cold War tracing the combative debate among artists writers and intellectuals over the nature of the aesthetic form in an age of mass politics and mass culture Dispensing with traditional narratives that present this moment as marking the exhaustion of modernism Genter argues instead that the 1950s were the apogee of the movement as American practitioners abstract expressionists Beat poets formalist critics color field painters and critical theorists among others debated the relationship between form and content tradition and innovation aesthetics and politics In this compelling work of intellectual and cultural history Genter presents an invigorated tradition of late modernism centered on the work of Kenneth Burke Ralph Ellison C Wright Mills David Riesman Jasper Johns Norman Brown and James Baldwin a tradition that overcame the conservative and reactionary politics of competing modernist practitioners and paved the way for the postmodern turn of the 1960s Homes & Lifestyles of South-central Indiana , 2008

Annual Report Indiana University Museum, 1976 The Quack's Daughter Greta Nettleton, 2013-05 Raised in the gritty Mississippi River town of Davenport Iowa Cora Keck could have walked straight out of a Susan Glaspell story When Cora was sent to Vassar College in the fall of 1884 she was a typical unmotivated newly rich party girl Her improbable educational opportunity at the first great educational institution for womankind turned into an enthralling journey of self discovery as she struggled to meet the high standards in Vassar's School of Music while trying to shed her reputation as the daughter of a notorious quack and self made millionaire Mrs Dr Rebecca J Keck second only to Lydia Pinkham as America's most successful self made female patent medicine entrepreneur of the time This lively stereotype shattering story might have been lost had Cora's great granddaughter Greta Nettleton not decided to go through some old family trunks instead of discarding most of the contents unexamined Inside she discovered a rich cache of Cora's college memorabilia essential complements to her 1885 diary which Nettleton had already begun to read The Quack's Daughter details Cora's youthful travails and adventures during a time of great social and economic transformation From her working class childhood to her gilded youth and her later married life Cora experienced triumphs and disappointments as a gifted concert pianist that the reader will recognize as tied to the limited opportunities open to women at the turn of the twentieth century as well as to the dangerous consequences for those who challenged social norms Set in an era of surging wealth torn by political controversy over inequality and women's rights and widespread panic about domestic terrorists The Quack's Daughter is illustrated with over a hundred original images and photographs that illuminate the life of a spirited and charming heroine who ultimately faced a stark life and death crisis that would force her to re-examine her doubts about her mother's medical integrity

Engineering and the Mind's Eye Eugene S. Ferguson, 1994-03-29 In this insightful and incisive essay Eugene Ferguson demonstrates that good engineering is as much a matter of intuition and nonverbal thinking as of equations and computation He argues that a system of engineering education that ignores nonverbal thinking will produce engineers who are dangerously ignorant of the many ways in which the real world differs from the mathematical models constructed in academic minds

The Making of Europe Robert Bartlett,2003-02-27 A wave of internal conquest settlement and economic growth took place in Europe during the High Middle Ages which transformed it from a world of small separate communities into a network of powerful kingdoms with distinctive cultures In this vivid and provocative book Robert Bartlett vividly shows how Europe was itself a product of colonization as much as it was later a colonizer and what this did to shape the continent and the world today The Architect Spiro Kostof,1977 The Architect traces the role of the profession across the centuries and in different cultures showing the architect both as designer and as mediator between the client and the builder The Study of Chivalry Howell Chickering,Thomas H Seiler,1989-11-01 In a series of essays readers will find information about modern scholarship on the subject of chivalry and various suggestions for ways to teach some familiar and unfamiliar chivalric materials Short bibliographies are provided for teachers further use Art Historiography and Iconologies Between West and East Wojciech Bałus,Magdalena Kunińska,2024-03-15 This volume explores a basic question in the historiography of art the extent to which iconology was a homogenous research method in its own immutable right By contributing to the rejection of the universalizing narrative these case studies argue that there were many strands of iconology Methods that differed from the canonised approach of Panofsky were proposed by Godefridus Johannes Hoogewerff and Hans Sedlmayr Researchers affiliated with the Warburg Institute in London also chose to distance themselves from Panofsky s work Poland in turn was the breeding ground for yet another distinct variety of iconology In Communist Czechoslovakia there were

Swing Landscape Jennifer McComas, 2020-09-04 An insightful study of the progressive politics animating a great work of modernist mural painting In 1936 the Works Progress Administration's Federal Art Project commissioned Stuart Davis 1892-1964 to paint a mural for the Williamsburg Houses a New York City housing project Though the mural Swing Landscape was never installed in its intended location it survives as an impressive testament to Davis's energetic colorful brand of abstraction and the progressive politics that animated it This study explores the painting one of the greatest of twentieth century America and arguably Davis's most ambitious work This book challenges the prevailing tendency to separate Davis's leftist activism from his art and contextualizes Swing Landscape within 1930s abstract mural painting in New York emphasizing the politics of abstraction The book also offers the first comprehensive look at the Williamsburg mural commission including works by Willem de Kooning Ilya Bolotowsky and others The result is an indispensable resource on interwar modernism mural painting and urban development Published in association with the Sidney and Lois Eskenazi Museum of Art Indiana University Exhibition Schedule Sidney and Lois Eskenazi Museum of Art Indiana University February 5-May 22 2022

Landscape as Urbanism Charles Waldheim, 2022-03-15 A definitive intellectual history of landscape urbanism It has become conventional to think of urbanism and landscape as opposing one another or to think of landscape as merely providing temporary relief from urban life as shaped by buildings and infrastructure But driven in part by environmental concerns landscape has recently emerged as a model and medium for the city with some theorists arguing that landscape architects are the urbanists of our age In Landscape as Urbanism one of the field's pioneers presents a powerful case for rethinking the city through landscape Charles Waldheim traces the roots of landscape as a form of urbanism from its origins in the Renaissance through the twentieth century Growing out of progressive architectural culture and populist environmentalism the concept was further informed by the nineteenth century invention of landscape architecture as a new art charged with reconciling the design of the industrial city with its ecological and social conditions In the late twentieth and early twenty first centuries as urban planning shifted from design to social science and as urban design committed to neotraditional models of town planning landscape urbanism emerged to fill a void at the heart of the contemporary urban project Generously illustrated Landscape as Urbanism examines works from around the world by designers ranging from Ludwig Hilberseimer Andrea Branzi and Frank Lloyd Wright to James Corner Adriaan Geuze and Michael Van Valkenburgh The result is the definitive account of an emerging field that is likely to influence the design of cities for decades to come
