Adapting to climate change Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Environmental Audit Committee, 2010-03-25 Climate projections show that Britain can expect wetter winters drier summers and a higher likelihood of flash floods heat waves and droughts Yet adaptation to climate change has been given only a fraction of the attention that has gone into reducing greenhouse gases The Government must build awareness and support for the wide ranging and urgent programme of action that is needed to protect people property and prosperity and safeguard the natural environment Adapting infrastructure and homes will be expensive To maintain current levels of flood protection for homes real terms spending on flood defences will need to increase from its current level of around 600 million per annum to around 1 billion in 2035 Estimates in 2009 suggest that by the end of the century around 7 billion may be needed to improve the Thames flood barrier and tidal defences New homes being built now must be designed to cope with the inevitable changes in climate over the next 50 80 years The Government must make adaptation and mitigation more central to the planning system New developments should only be permitted if they are suited to future climates Existing homes will also need to be adapted so that they are comfortable during hotter summers and better protected against the risk of flooding The Government must help to kick start an integrated retro fitting programme that covers adaptation water efficiency and energy efficiency Green infrastructure such as water storage greater tree cover and more open green spaces must also be promoted

Vulnerability and Adaptation Assessments Ron Benioff, Sandra Guill, Jeffrey Lee, 2012-12-06 The possible impacts of global climate change on different countries has led to the development and ratification of the Framework Convention on Climate Change FCCC and has a strong bearing on the future sustainable development of developing countries and countries with economies in transition The preparation of analytical methodologies and tools for carrying out assessments of vulnerability and adaptation to climate change is therefore of prime importance to these countries Such assessments are needed to both fulfill the reporting requirements of the countries under the FCCC as well as to prepare their own climate change adaptation and mitigation plans The vulnerability and adaptation assessment guidelines prepared by the U S Country Studies Program bring together all the latest knowledge and experience from around the world on both vulnerability analysis as well as adaptation methodologies It is currently being applied successfully by scientists in over fifty countries from all the regions of the globe This guidance is being published to share it with the wider scientific community interested in global climate change issues This guidance document has two primary purposes To assist countries in making decisions about the scope and methods for their vulnerability and adaptation assessments To provide countries with guidance and step by step instructions on each of the basic elements of vulnerability and adaptation assessments Making the Most of the Water We Have David B. Brooks, Oliver M. Brandes, Stephen Gurman, 2009-09-02

Based on the soft path approach to the energy sector a transition is now under way to a soft path for water This approach starts by ensuring that ecosystem needs for water are satisfied and then undertakes a radical approach to reducing human uses of water by economic and social incentives including open decision making water markets and equitable pricing and the application of super efficient technology all applied in ways that avoid jeopardizing quality of life The soft path for water is therefore a management strategy that frees up water by curbing water waste This book is the first to present and apply the water soft path approach It has three aims to bring to a wider audience the concept and the potential of water soft paths to demonstrate that soft path analysis is analytical and practical and not just eco dreaming and to indicate that soft paths are not only conceptually attractive but that they can be made economically and politically feasible Includes a tool kit for planners and other practitioners Published with POLIS Project and Friends of the Earth A Manual of International Law Edward Miner Gallaudet, 1886
