Sun Aiden Garabed Farrell, 2013-03-29 Aiden Farrell's No time under the sun strikes an incredible balance between innocence and maturity. One has the impression of looking at human experience through the eyes of a bearded old man who somehow remembers the electric emotions of youth. Love, regret, anger, violence, and happiness are all approached with wonderment and technical mastery. After reading this collection, we should all look forward to seeing Farrell's future work as he grapples with the million things that have escaped into history. Self of the after noon Brian Brazeau Academic Dean A mystical, mysterious, and enchanting journey into the self. One feels light and youthful upon reading these poems. Maryama Antoine English Teacher Aiden Farrell's collection of poems is impressive as it drums its way literally through familiar forests across rain-drenched streets and up into the imperial home of the clouds. His fine-tuned ear is magical in his poetry; he skillfully employs internal rhymes, alliteration, and consonance while creatively managing syntactical structures in poems such as Summer Celebration of the Eternal Dawn of Moon and Sun and No Time Under the Sun that show his experience as a percussionist. Even more impressive is the range of fresh and striking images that flow from his pen to accentuate traditional themes of innocence. Woman and the Wide Open Sky Above to defiance Watery and Cut Me Up to celebration Skin and finally to loss the elegaic Jean. In today's environmentally conscious world, Farrell's rich allusions to the natural world re-energize the call for preserving our maternal Earth, but in the end, his collection is about words and the power of poetry: words that may disappear into the grasses as he searches for them in the poem Excerpt from Autumn Manifests and all throughout the collection he talks of finding his lost words but someone should tell him: Your words have been there all along. Bravo! It is apt then that the final lines of his final poem dyeing discover Farrell declaring softly that creativity arrives and makes his thoughtlessness and cloudy windows clear without a sound. John Kim English Teacher Aiden has given us a collection which resonates with maturity of subject and voice. We can see the self emerging through the lines: vulnerable and joyous. Observing the Oceans in Real Time R. Venkatesan, Amit Tandon, Eric D'Asaro, M. A. Atmanand, 2017-11-17 This book provides contributions from leading experts on the integration of novel sensing technologies to yield unprecedented observations of coupled biological, chemical, and physical processes in the ocean from the macro to micro scale. Authoritative entries from experts around the globe provide first-hand information for oceanographers and researchers looking for solutions to measurement problems. Ocean observational techniques have seen rapid advances in the last few years, and this book addresses the need for a single overview of present and future trends in near real-time and real-time. First, the past, present, and future scenarios of ocean observational tools and techniques are elucidated. Then, this book divides into three modes of ocean observations surface upper ocean and deep ocean This is followed by data quality and modelling Collecting a summary of methods and applications this book provides first hand information for oceanographers and researchers looking for solutions to measurement problems This book is also suitable for final year undergraduate students or beginning graduate students in ocean engineering oceanography and various other engineering students such as Mechanical Civil Electrical and Bioengineering who are interested in specializing their skills towards modern measurements of the ocean

Halpern,2004-06-15 Called by some a Mediterranean Jutland the Battle of the Otranto Straits involved warships from Austria Germany Italy Britain and France Although fought by light units with no dreadnoughts involved Otranto was a battle in three dimensions engaging surface vessels aircraft and subsurface weapons both submarines and mines An attempt to halt the movement of submarines into the Adriatic using British drifters armed with nets and mines led to a raid by Austrian light cruisers The Austrians inflicted heavy damage on the drifters but Allied naval forces based at Brindisi cut off their withdrawal The daylight hours saw a running battle with the Austrians at considerable risk Heavier Austrian units put out from Cattaro in support and at the climactic moment the Allied light forces had to turn away permitting the Austrians to escape In the end the Austrians had inflicted more damage than they suffered themselves The Otranto action shows the difficulties of waging coalition warfare in which diplomatic and national jealousies override military efficiency Third World Louis Shalako, Hank Beveridge and Lieutenant Newton Shapiro are a couple of nice guys whose worlds just happen to collide Hank s getting up in years and Newton has his first independent field command On Third World women of marrying age are scarce as hen s teeth Hank s still looking though Newton has a job to do no matter who gets hurt The Empire is a long ways away but the locals are at least peaceable Lagrangian Analysis and Prediction of Coastal and Ocean Dynamics Annalisa Griffa,A. Publications* United States. Office of Naval Intelligence, 1917     Interhemispheric Water Exchange in the Atlantic Ocean G.J. Goni, P. M. Rizzoli, 2003-11-12 Recent results from modeling and observational studies demonstrate that the tropical Atlantic is a critical region for processes that maintain the meridional overturning circulation such as cross equatorial exchanges and for sea surface temperature variability that impacts on climate variability of the coupled tropical ocean atmosphere system The theme of this book is the inter hemispheric and inter gyre exchanges of heat salt and fresh water while its goal is to improve the knowledge of the tropical Atlantic dynamics and how it affects the global ocean A clear understanding of the dynamics of processes that affect the flow of mass and heat between the southern and the northern hemispheres in the upper few hundred meters in the tropical Atlantic and of those associated to the ocean circulation or to surface signals from decadal inter annual to mesoscale periods becomes necessary to better evaluate their contribution to the interhemispheric mass exchange These processes are believed to be largely responsible in driving the sea surface temperature which in turn is a critical parameter to investigate ocean atmospheric interactions Output produced by regional models is also used to complement the observations and to provide additional information on their spatial and temporal variability The subtropical cells by bringing water masses subducted in the subtropics to the equator and zonal currents investigated here contribute to the interhemispheric water exchange Special attention is also given to the warm and salty anticyclonic rings shed by the North Brazil Current which are now known to have a much broader impact not only on interhemispheric water mass transfer but also on the environment of remote regions Observations from different sources are blended together are used to validate model outputs and are also assimilated into models to obtain a more complete and accurate picture of the oceanic circulation and of its time evolution
