Rowen, 2005 Dossani's book addresses the largely hostile often violent relations between India and Pakistan that date from their independence in 1947 State and Nation-Building in Pakistan Roger D. Long, Gurharpal Singh, Yunas Samad, Ian Talbot, 2015-10-08 Religion violence and ethnicity are all intertwined in the history of Pakistan The entrenchment of landed interests operationalized through violence ethnic identity and power through successive regimes has created a system of authoritarian clientalism This book offers comparative historicist and multidisciplinary views on the role of identity politics in the development of Pakistan Bringing together perspectives on the dynamics of state building the book provides insights into contemporary processes of national contestation which are crucially affected by their treatment in the world media and by the reactions they elicit within an increasingly globalised polity It investigates the resilience of landed elites to political and social change and in the years after partition looks at the impact on land holdings of population transfer It goes on to discuss religious identities and their role in both the construction of national identity and in the development of sectarianism The book highlights how ethnicity and identity politics are an enduring marker in Pakistani politics and why they are increasingly powerful and influential An insightful collection on a range of perspectives on the dynamics of identity politics and the nation state this book on Pakistan will be a useful contribution to South Asian Politics South Asian History and Islamic Studies Courting Constitutionalism Moeen Cheema, 2021-12-16 Presents a deeply contextualized account of public law and judicial review in Pakistan Constitutional and Political History of Uganda George W. of views on what judicial independence means with scholars often advocating a preferred conception of a model court for achieving true judicial independence as part of a rule of law system This book seeks to reorient the prevailing approach to the study of judicial independence by better understanding how judicial independence operates within domestic legal systems in its institutional and legal dimensions It asks how and why different conceptualisations of judicial independence emerge over time by comparing detailed case studies of courts in two legally pluralistic states which share inheritances of British rule and the common law By tracing the development of judicial independence in the legal systems of Malaysia and Pakistan from the time of independence to the present the book offers an insightful comparison of how judicial independence took shape and developed in these countries over time From this comparison it suggests a number of contextual factors that can be seen to play a role in the evolution of judicial independence The study draws upon the significant divergence observed in the case studies to propose a refined understanding of the idea of an independent judiciary termed the pragmatic and context sensitive theory which may be seen in contradistinction to a universal approach While judicial independence responds to the core need of judges to be perceived as an impartial third party by constructing formal and informal constraints on the judge and relationships between judges and others its meaning in a legal system is inevitably shaped by the judicial role along with other features at the domestic level The book concludes that the adaptive and pragmatic qualities of judicial independence supply it with relevance and legitimacy within a domestic legal system
